Week-Day Work, Please "Thinking Makes It" Gold, Yellow and Cold Sea and Air Mastery

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1921.

The Methodists of America tell Congress they want no work done on Sundays, no trains running, no newspapers, no mails. Of course, the government will oblige them. Having said yes to the Prohibitionists, it would seem unjust to say no to the Methodists.

That being settled, perhaps the Methodists, after stopping work on the seventh day, could find some way of supplying work to five millions or so on the six other days.

The real problem of the country is week-day work, not Sunday work.

Steel prices are slashed, and less steel is sold than ever. You cannot sell to bankrupt customers, and our customers abroad are bankrupt, and our customers at home are frightened and have no direction. That is a situation that does not look like good business.

"There's nothing either good or bad, but thinking makes it so." That sentiment has been denounced, disproved, rebuked, and yet this happens:

A lady planned her public bath carefully. She put on her bathing suit, then put all her clothes on over the suit. Then she went down to the water, took off her outer things, one at a time, until she stood, like everybody else, in a regular, modest bathing suit.

She was arrested and locked up. The authorities said: "The people that saw you undressing did not know what you had on below, so your action was immodest."

It was clearly the THINKING of the onlookers that caused the lady to offend the law.

A few miles south of Anchorage, in Alaska, gold quartz is found, assaying $100 to the ton. Rock yielding $2 a ton, and even less, means a fortune. Don't rush to Alaska, but reflect on nature's way of distributing human beings. That gold discovery will send to Alaska tens of thousands of white men that Alaska needs. The majority will find no gold, but will find opportunity, and Alaska will find in them energetic men to develop her agricultural wealth, more important than metals.

Gold and the hunt for it have taken men all over the earth, to mountain tops, deep valleys—and they have stayed and developed civilization, long after the gold was gone. High up in the mountains of the Austrian Tyrol you will see abandoned gold mines that attracted the Romans, as the tin mines drew Phoenicians to England, without compass, across the dangerous waters, in frail boats.

The Cunard Company has built a magnificent office building on lower Broadway, New York. Christopher Morley, careful young reporter, discovers on a well-decorated ceiling a Latin inscription, and, learned Rhodes scholar, translates it as follows:

"He believes, indeed, that he who holds the sea is necessarily the master of things."

That translation should be posted up in the office of Mr. Lasker, head of the Shipping Board, and in the office of his boss, the President.

It is a saying as old as it is true. The Carthaginians knew it, when they told the Romans where they might and might not send their ships. England and Japan know it, act on it, make treaties on it.

This country should rewrite it—"He who holds the sea and THE AIR"—and then go ahead, specially in control of the air.

Tracy Gillis, at the age of thirty-three, sees a woman for the first time in his life. Son of an actress and a Moody and Sankey evangelist, Mr. Gillis had lived all his life on a distant ranch. When he brought in his load of cattle he also saw, for the first time, steam cars, street cars, newspapers and other things.

We all have an ancestor, Adam, who first saw a lady when he was full grown. It is safe to say if Adam had seen steam cars at the same time he would have paid little attention to the steam cars.

Nature, attending to her first business, compels men and women to concentrate attention on each other, excluding outside things. That is what causes trouble, but also gradual improvement of the race.

You observe that Japan is slow to come into the disarmament conference. She has her reasons for thinking the thing over in the careful Oriental fashion.

She will come in, however, for the limitation will be put on fighting ships, and when the next war comes, they will not interest Japan much. Big freight ships, able to transport bombing flying machines across the Pacific close to this shore, will do the work.

Suicide on Tufts College Field

DIES WITH BULLET IN HEART

Youth's Body Found in Pitcher's Box; Left Note to Mother

The body of Arthur Esiason, twenty-two years old, a former Somerville High School student, was found with a bullet in his heart in the pitcher's box of the Tufts College baseball diamond at Somerville today.

Near the body was a 38-calibre revolver, with one bullet exploded; a new baseball and a note in which the youth declared he picked the spot to kill himself because:

"I have played so many games of baseball here. This is where I want to die."

Esiason had recently been living in Fairmount, W. Va., with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Esiason, former Somerville residents. For the past two weeks he had been visiting friends in Somerville. He left ostensibly to go home.

The note, addressed to "My dear, dearest mother," read:

"Please do not grieve. Live the rest of your life as happy as possible.

"Pa, please be good to her and love her as you should."

He then goes on to state that he had tried in vain to find a cure for his nervous trouble and, tired of trying, decided to die.

WOMAN SUES FOR $3,000 FOR INJURIES TO COW

Miss Lillie M. Donlon of Cambridge wants $3,000 for damage done her registered and famous cow, Cobweb, injured, as she alleges, by an automobile owned and driven by Frank E. Smith of Dunstable on May 17 last. Suit for that amount was filed by her attorneys, Donlon, Morson & Stebbins, in the East Cambridge Court. Cobweb, according to the papers in the case, was being driven from Tyngsboro to Dunstable when she was struck. She is an Ayreshire, her owner says, of a famous family and quite well known in bovine circles herself.

Wife of Convicted Slayer, Who Gave Way to Wild Grief at Verdict

MRS. NICOLA SACCO

VANZETTI AND SACCO BEGIN NEW FIGHT

Counsel Appeal Jury's Death Verdict in Murder of Paymaster

Immediate steps will be taken to file an appeal from the verdict of the jury, which late yesterday convicted Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti of the murder of a South Braintree paymaster and his guard.

Announcement to this effect was made today by J. J. McAnarney of counsel for the two convicted murderers.

The verdict of the jury in the Dedham Superior Criminal Court came at 8:15 last night, after the jurors had deliberated more than five hours on the evidence of the trial which had lasted nearly two months.

The two men were accused of premeditated murder of Frederick Parmenter, paymaster for the Slater & Morrell Shoe Company and his guard, Alessandro Beradelli, on April 15, 1920.

When the verdict of guilty was announced in the tense silence of the thronged courtroom by Foreman Ripley, there was a moment of hush and then the wail of a woman rang out. It was Mrs. Sacco, who for all the long weeks of the trial had been sitting as near to her husband as the law allowed.

Her cry was stilled by the harsher tones of her husband, who staggered to his feet and shouted:

"You have killed two innocent men."

At the sound of her husband's voice Mrs. Sacco stilled her own weeping and ran to his side, leaning over the railing of the prisoner's cage to throw both arms about the condemned man's neck. Her hat fell off and her long hair streamed down her back, but she paid no attention to this beyond brushing away such stray locks as got in her eyes.

"What shall I do," she cried, "What shall I do! I have two children and they kill my man—Oh, Nick—they kill my man."

WOMAN FOUND IN STREET IN NIGHTGOWN

Worcester, July 15.—Nora Donahue, twenty-eight years old, of No. 2 George Street court, is in Ward J, City Hospital, for observation. She was found wandering near the street railway barn on Market street with nothing on but a nightdress. She told the police a man entered her house and threatened an assault and she left the house to escape him.

HAD MANIA FOR AUTOS, THIEF SAYS

Collins, Lowell Man, Sentenced to 2½ Years for Stealing 9 Cars in Back Bay

Mania for owning an automobile brought John L. Collins, former superintendent of the Lowell Electric Lighting Company, into the dock at the Suffolk County Superior Court, he told Judge Quinn today when being sentenced to two and one-half years in State prison for the theft of nine cars in the streets of the Back Bay district.

Collins was arrested on June 16 and his apprehension here was immediately followed by the arrest in Lowell of a girl charged with misconduct with Collins.

The prisoner, a good looking young man, who has a wife and children in Lowell, where he was earning a salary of $4,000 from the Electric Lighting Company, seemed overcome with shame at the position in which he found himself and the disclosure of his double life.

AUTOS FASCINATED HIM

"Automobiles fascinated me," he told Judge Quinn in response to questions by the court. In July, 1916, he saw a machine that tempted him beyond his power to resist, and he stole it. Later he was compelled to sell it, but stole another, he said.

He denied that he had been actuated by the hope of profit in any of his thefts.

"It was just a mania for me," he concluded.

The girl arrested in Lowell as the accomplice of Collins was Miss Ethel Goddard, twenty-three years old, of Halifax, N. S., and said to be remarkably pretty.

HIS "LOVE BIRD."

Collins is said by the police to have supported her for more than six months, although still living with his wife and children. The apartment he is alleged to have furnished for "My Love Bird," as he called Miss Goddard, is said to have been furnished with skill and taste and with expensive furniture.

The arrest of Collins last month in Brookline came as a stunning shock to Mrs. Collins and her friends, none of whom had the slightest hint that anything was wrong in the life of the young engineer.

Collins had been prominent in fraternal and society affairs in Lowell, and had a host of friends who refused to believe the charges against him until he confessed in public that he was guilty.

ROBBERS WRECK TRAIN WITH $1,000,000 CARGO

Cleveland, O., July 15.—A dozen spikes and iron plates removed from the west-bound tracks of the New York Central railroad, two miles west of Willoughby, caused the derailment of an express train of fourteen cars, eight of the coaches and the engine plowing through the ties. No car overturned and no one was hurt. New York Central police detectives say the derailment was evidently due to robbers who hoped to take goods from the train following the wreck.

The coaches contained nearly a million dollars' worth of merchandise.

The train was bound from Buffalo to Chicago and comprised American Railway Express shipments.

BOSTON ELKS MARCH IN LOS ANGELES PARADE

Los Angeles, Cal., July 15.—Boston's delegation to the National Elks convention marched in full force in a mammoth parade, the closing feature of the sessions. More than 15,000 took part. In its report, the National headquarters' committee advised the publication of a country-wide Elks journal.

Women Want to Take Part in Parley on Disarmament

Washington, July 15.—The ladies—bless 'em—want to be in on President Harding's disarmament conference.

The Women's Committee for World Disarmament announced today that "just representation of women" in the conference would be demanded of the President.

The committee also demanded that representation be given groups "which bear the brunt of war and are disassociated from any special interest in the promotion of war and the profits which accrue from war."

ANOTHER ARREST IN DEAF MUTE ASSAULT

Joseph Mosher, twenty-eight years old, of Saratoga street, East Boston, was arrested today charged with implication in the robbery of and assault on Richard Cahill, a deaf mute, in a barn on Lewis street, two weeks ago. He was held in $5,000 bonds for a hearing tomorrow. Thomas Whateley, twenty-eight years old, of Morris street, is waiting trial for the same offense. According to the police the two men went into the barn, beat the deaf mute into unconsciousness and stole $10 from his pocket. Cahill has since been confined to the City Hospital with a broken jaw, three broken ribs and other injuries.

SUNDAY AMUSEMENTS AGITATE WAKEFIELD

A move on the part of a committee of churchmen of Wakefield to stop Sunday whist playing, Sunday golf and lotteries at fairs and picnics by a town ordinance met with considerable opposition when the question was aired before the local board of selectmen. Representatives of the lodges of the town spoke in favor of the lotteries and others championed Sunday card playing and golf. The selectmen took the matter under advisement.

MacMILLAN REVEALS HIS ARCTIC PROGRAM

Wiscasset, Me., July 15.—Dr. Donald B. MacMillan today gave out the itinerary of his Polar schooner, Bowdoin, as follows:

UNABLE TO PREVENT GARAGE CONVERSION

John O'Callaghan, chairman of the street commissioners, has replied to protestants against the conversion of pleasure car garages into garages for commercial trucks that the street commissioners are powerless. Those who oppose such conversion should apply to the courts and prove that the converted garage is a nuisance.

PREMIER HEARS PLEA OF ULSTER

Lloyd George to Submit Proposals of oBth Sides to Cabinet Before Further Parley

Belfast, July 15.—The lull in Ulster hostilities was suddenly broken today when firing broke out in several quarters of the city. Three persons are known to be dead, but it is believed the fatalities were greater than this, as it is likely that bodies were secretly removed from the fighting areas.

By International News Service.

London, July 15.—The peace conversations of Premier Lloyd George and Eamon de Valera, President of the Irish Republic, have been discontinued for the time being, but will be resumed later.

Before meeting De Valera the Premier conferred with Sir Hamar Greenwood, Chief Secretary for Ireland, and Marquis Curzon, the Foreign Secretary. De Valera was accompanied to No. 10 Downing street by Art O'Brien and Roy Barton, but they remained outside of the Cabinet room while the conversations were in progress.

Following the meeting, the following official communique was issued:

"A conference was held today. It will be resumed, probably on Monday."

SEPARATE CONFERENCES.

Art O'Brien, head of the Irish Self-Determination League and colleague of De Valera, indicated there were matters to be considered by each side separately before the conferences of Lloyd George and the "Irish President" was renewed.

O'Brien said he did not believe there would be any more meetings between the two negotiators this week. While the peace negotiations were in progress news came from Belfast of fresh disorders in violation of the armistice.

Premier Lloyd George and Sir James Craig, the Ulster Premier, conferred during the afternoon.

It was revealed this afternoon that both De Valera and Sir James Craig have made proposals to the British government. The Premier summoned a conference of the Cabinet tonight to consider the proposals.

The Morning Post, in an article today, reflected the fears of the Ulster Unionists that "Lloyd George may be about to betray them to the Sinn Feiners."

SEES POLITICAL SIGNIFICANCE.

The Morning Post declared that the Premier's boast of a settlement might have political significance in England being intended as the means of pulling the Premier victoriously through a general election which is now expected in five or six months.

"The Ulster Premier is too shrewd to be inveigled into a false position, but it must be admitted that the Northern state (Ulster) is now exposed to a most serious peril," said the Morning Post.

When Sir James Craig arrived this afternoon from Belfast the only statement he would make was: "I am hopeful and I can say no more."

Today's meeting lasted about an hour and a half. The Sinn Fein leader left the Premier's residence shortly before 1 o'clock.

WOMAN SLASHED WITH RAZOR IN SLEEP

Jealous Suitor of New Jersey Mother, Who Deserted Babes, Held as Assailant

Mrs. Madeline Orange, twenty-nine years old, who six months ago deserted her husband and three children in Bayonne, N. J., to elope with Pasquale Urciuoli of the same city, is at the East Boston Relief Station as a result of having been cut seven or eight times across the face and neck by a safety razor.

Urciuoli pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault and battery with intent to murder when arraigned in the East Boston Court. The case was continued for a week to await the recovery of Mrs. Orange. In default of $5,000 bail the accused man was taken to jail.

Urciuoli and Mrs. Orange have been living at No. 187 Marion street, East Boston. The former is thirty-two years old.

Neighbors hearing screams during the night called the police. A squad of officers headed by Sergeant James H. Lewis, on reaching the home, found the woman lying unconscious in a pool of blood.

Urciuoli fled from the house a few minutes before the police arrived, but was captured at the junction of Chelsea and Gove streets.

According to the police, Urciuoli was jealous of another man and slashed the woman while she slept.

CORCORAN IS NAMED IN CASE

Graft Was Paid, Says Banker, to Avoid Prosecution by Middlesex District Attorney

An amazing story of alleged intimidation, blackmail and corruption was told today at the trial of District Attorney Tufts before the Supreme Court by President James S. Athans of the International Service Company, Inc.

This story was to some extent supported by Attorney Lemuel W. Peters of No. 13 Tremont street, former attorney for the company.

The charge that Tufts and co-conspirators "shook down" Athans and his partners for $7,500 is one of the main counts in Attorney-General Allen's charge of malfeasance against the Middlesex District Attorney.

Athans and Peters told their sensational stories of the alleged "shake-down" just after District Attorney Pelletier of Suffolk County had testified on another matter.

Attorney Peters, beside corroborating most of President Athans' amazing allegations, showed a letter that was signed by District Attorney Tufts.

This letter stated that Tufts "saw no course open but the presentation of the evidence against Athans and the others to the Grand Jury."

They were charged with violation of the banking laws, Peters explained.

Notwithstanding that threat, Peters and Athans both testified that nothing was done beyond issuing of summonses.

SETTLED FOR $7,500.

But in the meantime, according to Athans, $7,500 had been paid for the settlement of the case.

The names of William J. Corcoran, former district attorney of Middlesex; Attorney Harry E. Levenson and Police Captain Herbert Gordon of the Cambridge police were repeatedly mentioned by Athans and Peters on the stand. All three men mentioned were named by Attorney-General Allen as co-conspirators in the holdup.

Athans explained that his concern dealt in stocks, bonds and real estate. The first step in the "shakedown," he continued, was when Captain Herbert Gordon approached him and told him that there were complaints about the way his agents were doing. That was early last Summer.

Gordon was very mysterious and wouldn't tell the exact nature of the charge, Athans said.

Athans, George H. Grant and Korsak, his partners, talked with their lawyer, Peters, but at a later date they engaged Attorney Harry E. Levenson, alleged co-conspirator.

Levenson suggested that they engage Attorney William J. Corcoran, one of Tufts' predecessors in office.

"SEE TUFTS ABOUT THIS."

Corcoran, in turn, suggested that he be paid a $1,000 fee. Then Athans, frightened by the charges against his agents, asked Levenson "if there wasn't some way so see Tufts about this."

Levenson said there was. Athans said it was then, in Levenson's office that the $7,500 later paid over was suggested.

Athans, continuing, insisted that on one occasion Tufts told him "We've got you under the banking laws. This case will have to go to the Grand Jury."

He said that summonses for himself and his partners were issued, but he never saw them. That was as far as the prosecution went, he said.

Athans was confident in his testimony that it was the threat of criminal prosecution that caused him and his partners to "come through."

Athans followed District-Attorney Pelletier on stand.

His testimony concerned paragraph fifteen of the list of specifications. This contains the charge of conspiracy by Tufts.

Q.—I ask you what Omar Kaldah referred to in his conversation with you regarding Harry Levenson, the attorney? A.—He spoke to me about Levenson. He invited me to meet him, as he would be a good lawyer. He wanted me to see Levenson so that I would be safe and not have any trouble by any one.

Q.—After you went to see Levenson, what did he say? A.—He asked about the case.

Q.—Who introduced you to Mr. Levenson? A.—Mr. Kaldah.

H. V. GREENE PRESENT.

Q.—What did you say? A.—I said I saw him once before in my office.

Q.—What did Kaldah say to that? A.—Kaldah said "Levenson will take care of you. He is a very good friend of mine. Don't be afraid to tell him to go right ahead. He'll take you to a man who will cover everything up."

Athans said Levenson was not present during his conversation with Kaldah, and the court ordered all reference to it stricken out.

Q.—Tell the conversation you had with Levenson? A.—He took me to go to Mr. Corcoran's office.

Q.—What Mr. Corcoran is that? A.—William J. Corcoran.

Q.—Did you go there? A.—I did.

Q.—Who was present? A.—William J. Corcoran, George H. Grant and myself.

Q.—What was said? A.—Corcoran said he would be able to 'fix' things up. I said the only thing that bothered me is publicity. I do not want to see anything in the papers. Corcoran then asked if I knew Greene.

Attorney-General Allen here interrupted the witness as to whether the witness meant H. V. Greene of the H. V. Greene Company.

"Yes," replied the witness. "I used to work for them."

Q.—What else did you say to Corcoran? A.—I asked him how much it would cost to handle the case. He said he needed $1,000 for a retainer. He asked how much was the claim against the company. I said they didn't tell what the complaint was. He said he would try to find out. We did agree to give a retainer. I asked how much more it would require. Mr. Grant asked what would be the full amount. Corcoran did not say.

"WANTED $10,000."

Q.—Is that all that you remember about what was said at Corcoran's office? A.—No. Levenson coaxed us to do it. They spoke about $10,000. Grant said, "Nothing doing—we'll fight the case." Then we left the office.

Q.—Then what happened? A.—As I remember, on Tuesday morning we found a summons in our office. There was one for me, one for Mr. Grant, and one for Mr. Korsak. Korsak was our Lowell manager. I told Grant to take care of the case, as I was sick of it. Grant and I then went to Levenson. That was the time that Mr. Peters went along with us.

Pelletier Tells of Harvey's Plea for Fugutive Curry

"In March, 1920, Harvey (Tufts' law partner) came to see me and again urged me to permit the return of John B. Curry. He said Curry's mother was growing old and wanted her son to come home.

"I told Harvey that there was was another mother to be considered in the matter, whose little boy came to his death by reason of the crime. He asked me if the other motheer consented whetheer I would allow Curry to return. I said: 'I'll never allow him to come back here, regardless of what any of the mothers says.'"—From the testimony of District Attorney Pelletier at the Tufts' trial today.

"On that occasion Mr. Levenson said: 'If you want to stop this you'll have to act quickly.' We did not know what to do, as we had received summonses. We asked Mr. Peters if he had been through the advertising and the books. He said he had and he did not know why we should pay that. We said to Mr. Levenson, 'Is there no possible way to see Mr. Tufts about this?' He said there was."

Q.—What amount was referred to at that time? A.—$7,500.

Q.—When was that amount mentioned? A.—Tuesday. Then we had an appointment to meet Tufts Wednesday. On Tuesday Levenson said he would call Corcoran to get permission to see Tufts. Mr. Korsak, Grant, Mr. Patonia and I went to East Cambridge—Tufts' office. Levenson went with us.

PLEADED WITH TUFTS.

Levenson told us to wait outside when we got there. He then went into Tufts' office and was there quite a while—more than twenty minutes. Then they called us in.

I don't remember whether Captain Gordon called us or whether it was Levenson. Levenson told Tufts that we were all right, and wanted Tufts to be "reasonable with us." I then talked to Tufts. I said that I wanted him to consider this complaint. "You don't say," I told him, "what this complaint is.' I offer the clerks to come here and I am willing to be put to any expense. I have been in the army and I care for this company. I am body and soul in this company, and have worked hard. My idea is to have a large concern. I am an ex-service man. I want you to protect me in a fair way. I want justice."

Tufts said, "I don't care and I've got you under banking laws, Chapter 428, Laws of 1911." I began to talk to Tufts and Captain Gordon stopped me. He said, "We can convict you if we want to, but we don't want to." I said to Gordon, "If you got anything against me personally go ahead, but let the company alone."

$7,500 IN ALL PAID.

Q.—Then what happened? A.—We went back to Levenson's office and we told Levenson we would consider what we would do. Grant and I then went to our office, and we left it to the directors what should be done.

Q.—What was done? A.—Grant and I went to Levenson's office to say that we wanted to pay the amount, and stop the case. He said to make a check to Mr. Grant. I said, "Why not make it to you?" He said, "You make it to Grant and he will cash the check and give me the money." I then made out my personal check for $1,000 to Grant.

Hurlburt then produced a check dated June 1, 1920, for $1,000 payable to George H. Grant. It was on the Merchants National Bank and bore Grant's endorsement.

Q.—What was then done? Grant went out and returned with $1,000 and gave it to Levenson.

The witness then stated that three other checks for $1,000, $2,000 and $2,500 respectively were drawn to settle the account. He said he could not remember whether the $2,000 check was paid first, but that the $2,000 check was made payable to Levenson.

HAD TO BORROW MONEY.

"We had to borrow some of the money," he added. A check for $2,000 dated June 4, 1920, payable to the order of "Harry E. Levenson" and signed by James S. Athans as treasurer of the International Service Company, Inc., was then introduced. It was on the Merchants National, was endorsed by Levenson, who banked it at the Tremont Trust Company.

The witness then said:

"I said to Levenson in his office at the time this money was paid: 'What happened to me was nothing but a hold-up. If I had been in a different position I wouldn't do that. It's pretty bad to be robbed this way.' Levenson said to me: 'Oh! They do that everywhere. You can't help it.'"

Q.—Did you hear anything more from the office of the District Attorney? A.—Nothing at all.

Q.—Did you hear anything more from the summonses? A.—No.

Q.—And you were never called to court. A.—No, sir.

Q.—And no other proceedings were suggested? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Did you ever see Corcoran after the first interview? A.—I think I saw him only twice.

ADVISED TO SETTLE.

Q.—What did Levenson say about the claims after you received the summons and before you went to Corcoran's office? A.—He said, "I advise you to go ahead and settle." He told me to act quickly.

Q.—Did Levenson render a bill for service? A.—Yes, sir. He sent me a letter and sent a letter to the company. He asked us to pay $500. He reduced it from $1,000. I paid $250 and got additional time to pay the rest.

Q.—At the time the $7,500 was paid, did Levenson say anything further? A.—He said, "A lot of men will get something out of this, but I won't get anything. I'm doing this as a favor, because you were introduced to me by Kaldah."

Kaldah was a spiritualist medium consulted by Athans following the first visit of Captain Gordon to his office.

A check showing the payment of $250 by the International Service Company, Inc., signed by Athans as treasurer and made out to Levenson was introduced together with Levenson's bill, which read "for services during the months of May, June, July and August, 1920." The bill was marked "Paid, Sept. 1, 1920."

REFUSES TO ANSWER.

The witness was cross-examined by Ranney, and testified that he was formerly employed by the H. V. Greene Company for a time after his return from the army. When asked if the International Service Company paid 15 per cent. to its agents the witness replied hotly, "I am not here to discuss that, and I don't intend to answer."

Attorney Ranney pressed for an answer and Chief Justice Rugg said: "The question is competent and may be answered."

Hurlburt said to the witness:

"You answer any questions that are asked, unless I object."

The witness said that something like 15 per cent. was paid to agents. He could not remember how much he and his associates put into the organization of the company. He did not remember how many agents the company had. He admitted that the company was not organized as a banking corporation.

A circular which Captain Gordon obtained upon his first visit to the office of the witness was then introduced. Mr. Ranney read portions of it. He said that the heading upon it read:

"Money Now Talks Louder Than Ever Before."

PONZI MENTIONED.

Ranney also read that the capital was $3,000,000. After many questions the witness said that at the time this circular was issued the paid-in capital was over $100,000, but was not $3,000,000. He said the $100,000 came from stockholders, and that he thought that $7,000 or $8,000 was put up when the company was started.

Charles Ponzi's name was interjected at this point for the first time.

Q.—At that time had you heard of Ponzi? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you admire him? A.——

Objection was made and the question was not pressed.

Reading still further from the circular Mr. Ranney asked the witness regarding financing motor vehicles, as to trade acceptances and the construction of workingmen's homes. The witness said that the finances of motor vehicles means mortgages on cars, and that his understanding of the trade acceptances was "when a man wants to borrow money on goods he has to pay a large sum for the loan of the money." He could not remember that his concern had built any workingmen's homes.

He admitted that the company had invested in homes.

SAID HE CAME FROM TUFTS.

Q.—Did you know that your agents represented that their money was going into a sort of a bank, and that they could draw it out any time they wished? A.—No.

Q.—Did you take money on deposit? A.—No.

The witness then admitted that he had been visited by a man from the State House prior to the time Captain Gordon called. This man, said the witness, declared he had come from the State House, represented the immigration department, and wanted to know about the company, as many people, who had invested, would like to have all possible information.

Q.—When Gordon came to you, did he say that he came from Tufts? A.—Yes.

Q.—And he said that there had been some complaints, and you answered, "What complaints?" A.—Yes, and after a while he told me that I was violating the banking laws.

Athans declared he had no knowledge that Chief Welsh of the Lowell police was investigating the concern of which he was president as a result of being notified that the corporation was swindling poor people out of money.

Q.—How much stock in the company did you take and pay for when the company started? A.—I don't remember exactly, but I had a large sum of money.

Q.—Is that the only answer you can give? A.—Yes.

Q.—Will you tell the court how much money you put into the company? A.—I don't know exactly, but I financed the company from beginning to end with thousands of dollars.

Attorney Ranney asked the court to have the last part of the answer stricken out and the court so ruled.

FINANCED COMPANY.

Q.—Did you put in as much as $1,000 into this company when it started?

Attorney-General Allen interrupted to ask if he meant that much in stock.

Attorney Ranney withdrew the question.

Q.—I asked you how many shares of stock you took. A.—About 2,800 shares.

Q.—What was the par value? A.—Ten dollars a share.

Q.—Did you pay for them? A.—No, they were given to me.

Witness testified that he put no money into the corporation, but that he "financed" it. He said he received the shares of stock because he had been giving his services free to the company.

Q.—Who recommended you to the Spiritualist? A.—Captain Gordon.

While Attorney Ranney was questioning the witness about a person with whom he talked Ranney turned around and had a man in the rear stand up.

Q.—Is that the man with whom you talked? A.—No.

Hurlburt, who was seated opposite, spoke up: "Is that a stall you brought in?"

Ranney: "Will you please stop interrupting me?"

The court made peace.

DIDN'T SEE SUMMONS.

Witness was positive he went to District Attorney Tufts' office only once.

He testified he did not receive any of the summonses. He said Charles P. Korsak of the International Service Company did not show him a summons.

Q.—Have you any of the summonses you received? A.—No, they were turned back to Mr. Levenson.

Q.—Were they signed by Mr. Wagner? A.—No.

Q.—Don't you know all of the business which is transacted in District Attorney Tufts' office is not carried on by Tufts, that he gets aid from his assistants? A.—By his assistants.

Q.—Did you learn as a result of any of the talks to which you refer that any of your people had been over to see Mr. Peters? A.—No.

Witness was positive he saw Tufts when he visited the Cambridge courthouse. He said Mr. Tufts said in substance, "I don't know anything about it."

Q.—Did I understand you to say Mr. Tufts said to you, "We've got you. You've got to go before the Grand Jury?" A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Did Attorney Levenson tell you that your agents, representing the International Service Company, Inc., ought not to be going around telling people that they could get money back on stock purchases; that poor people had been putting money into the stock, and that they really could not get it back if they wanted? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Do you mean to say that you were informed at the District Attorney's office that "they had you and you would be brought before the Grand Jury?" A.—Yes, sir.

CORCORAN ASKED $1,000.

Athans testified about his visit to the office of William J. Corcoran. He said he was requested to pay Corcoran a $1,000 retainer.

Q.—When did you pay $3,000 to Levenson? A.—In June.

Q.—What day in June? A.—June 23.

Witness was emphatic in saying he did not receive the "point" he tried to get from Attorney Levenson.

Athans was take in re-direct examination by Attorney-General Allen. He said he received no salary from the International Service Corporation and gave his services for one year.

Eugene E. Davis, city engineer of Northampton, was the next witness, and was questioned on the Herman L. Barney angle of the Tufts case. He was asked the distance between Greenfield and Brattleboro, Vt., and said twenty miles. Was not cross-examined.

Next witness was Attorney Lemuel W. Peters of No. 43 Tremont street, who testified as to the alleged $7,500 shake-down of Athans and the others of the International Service Company.

He said that about six months prior to the events referred to by Athans he was connected with the International Service Company as attorney. Most of his dealings were through George H. Grant, he said. Grant was vice-president.

TALKED WITH GORDON

He said he saw more or less of the president James S. Athans. Peters said that on May 26, 1920, Mr. Athans called on him and in consequence of a conversation they had he (Peters) called Captain Herbert Gordon of the Cambridge police on the telephone.

He asked Gordon several questions.

Q.—What were they? A.—I said to him: "I understand there is a complaint registered against the International Service Company, Inc." He said there was and that the charge was larceny. He began talking about stocks sold or about to be sold. He said he did not like to talk to me over the telephone about the matter. I made an appointment to meet him at 1 o'clock that afternoon. I kept the appointment and went to the district attorney's office in Cambridge, where I met Captain Gordon.

Q.—Was Mr. Levenson connected with the case then? A.—No.

Witness said he later talked to Assistant District Attorney Wagner and asked him what he knew about the case Captain Gordon referred to. Wagner said he knew nothing about it. Captain Gordon introduced the two.

Witness related concervation he had with Gordon. He said: "I told Gordon the majority of the directors lived in Middlesex County. He said that certain citizens had bought stocks and had made complaints to him about the agents misrepresenting it.

WOULD HAVE TO SEE TUFTS.

I told him about the financial condition of the company, and that the money taken in was invested in real estate and mortgages, and that the officers were receiving no salaries for their services. Captain Gordon said he had no authority to act in the matter and I would have to see Mr. Tufts."

Attorney-General Allen read a statement of the financial condition of the corporation, which showed it had a capital stock of $153,040.

Q.—What was the par value of the stock? A.—$10.

Q.—How much was the stock sold for? A.—$15 a share.

Witness said he wrote Tufts a letter June 1, 1920. Tufts said in reply, "Report of Captain Gordon seems to leave no course open but presentation of the facts to the grand jury."

Two days after he got the letter from Tufts the witness said he went to the office of Attorney Harry E. Levenson. George H. Grant and Levenson were there. Levenson said he thought the matter "could be adjusted" and that "he would like to see Mr. Tufts himself."

LEVENSON SAW CORCORAN.

"My recollection is he called Tufts on the telephone then and made an appointment for East Cambridge," said Peters. "Athans went with him, but I didn't."

Q.—Was anything said about expenses? A.—Nothing at that time.

Q.—Anything said about the Grand Jury coming in? A.—Not at that time. Later in the day I went back to Levenson's office. Levenson and Grant were there. They said they hadn't been able to make an appointment with Tufts. They said the business would have to be done by William J. Corcoran. Levenson left the office and went to Corcoran's office. Later he returned and told us what transpired there.

Peters continued. "Later Levenson told me the matter could be adjusted on payment of $7,500.

Q.—Did you learn that summonses had been served. A.—Yes.

Q.—Was there any further prosecution or were any further steps taken in regard to this matter. A.—I never heard of any.

The witness said he never had any conversations with Tufts.

Under cross examination Peters said he had nothing to do with the International Service Company, Inc., prior to organization. He said he did not se the circulars offered in evidence before it was put out. He admitted that Captain Gordon, during the firstinterview, said they had been asked to look into several companies.

INVESTED IN REAL ESTATE.

Q.—What did the company do with its money? A.—It invested in real estate or put the money out in first and second mortgages.

Q.—You know that the company declared a dividend in May, 1920. A.—Yes.

Q.—From your examination of the books did you learn whether that dividend was earned. A.—It was, on the stock on which they paid it. They did not pay it on the stock given to Athans for organising the company.

The witness said the money paid out in dividends was made on loans at a high rate of interest. He said that $15 a share was charged by agents for stock of $10 par value, and that $2.50 of the remaining $5 was paid to agents and the rest divided among the officers.

Q.—So that, although the officers were not to receive any pay for a year they divided $2.50 of the money received from every share of stock sold. A.—Yes.

Pelletier Refused to Quash Curry Case

District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier of Suffolk County was the first witness called today in the trial of District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts of Middlesex County before five justices of the Supreme Court for alleged malfeasance in office.

Pelletier was questioned with particular reference to Paragraph 29 in Allen's original charges against Tufts, but he was also asked regarding a mysterious paper missing in the Mishawum Manor case, for which he had been asked to look by Attorney Daniel H. Coakley.

Paragraph 29 of Allen's allegations stated that "The District Attorney (Tufts) has a law office in Boston, being associated with George Stanley Harvey and Frank W. Campbell, and that Harvey was an assistant district attorney of Middlesex County during the period covered by the charges."

It was vague, and without names, other than those of the lawyers mentioned.

Pelletier was asked concerning the case of one John B. Curry, fugitive from justice in Suffolk County, for whom Pelletier admitted, George Stanley Harvey asked clemency.

The missing list of exceptions in the Mishawum Manor case he could not find among his papers after Coakley asked him to look for it, Pelletier said. Pelletier was on the stand only a short time before he was followed by James S. Athans of the International Service Company, Inc., alleged victim in the "shake-down" of that concern by Tufts, former District Attorney William J. Corcoran of Middlesex and Captain Herbert Gordon of the Cambridge police.

REFUSED SEVERAL TIMES.

Pelletier was questioned:

Q.—What was the case of the Commonwealth against Curry? A.—Statutory.

Pelletier recited the history of the case and said that Curry finally pleaded guilty; that he was defaulted following his disappearance.

In further explanation Pelletier said: "Upon examination of the treaty with Canada I found Curry couldn't be extradited. I could not secure his return. A few months after the bail was settled, in July, 1917, George Stanley Harvey met me on the street and asked me if I couldn't nolle prosse the case against Curry. He said the young man wanted to come home."

Attorney Ranney interrupted, and there was debate.

Pelletier continued. "I met Harvey on the street again later and he again asked me if Curry couldn't come back. I said 'No.' Six months later I met him again. He said, 'What about that fellow in St. John? Will you let him come back?' I said no. We met again later and he asked me the same thing and I said no.

"ANOTHER MOTHER."

"In March, 1920, Harvey came to see me and again urged me to permit the return of Curry. He said Curry's mother was growing old and wanted her son to come home.

"I told Harvey that there was another mother to be considered in the matter, whose little boy came to his death by reason of the crime. He asked me if the other mother consented whether I would allow Curry to return. I said: 'I'll never allow him to come back here, regardless of what any of the mothers say.'"

Later Pelletier said that a letter had been obtained from the other mother on March 29, 1920. "He again asked me if I would let Curry return," said Pelletier. "He said that Curry, who was a church organist, had a good opportunity to secure a position in New York, and that his mother needed his help. I said he could go to New York or any other State, but if he came to Massachusetts he would be arrested. The warrant is still out and that's the way the matter ran."

During Pelletier's examination Attorney Johnson, of counsel for Tufts, called the attention of the court to the fact that this affair happened in 1917, and that Harvey was in partnership with the firm of Tufts, Harvey & Campbell, with offices in Boston.

SHIFTS ATTACK.

At this point Hurlburt shifted his line of questioning and asked Pelletier if he (Pelletier) had gone over his papers in his office to find a bill of acceptance to which Coakley referred while on tht stand Wednesday.

Pelletier said that he went through all papers in the safe in his office, but was unable to locate the document.

"The bill of acceptance was recently filed, and my assistant, Mr. Ryan, was working on it, and he is now away on his vacation."

The witness further testified that, so far as he knew, there was nothing in that list relating to the Mishawum Manor case.

Q.—And the list in the Mishawum Manor case is the one you were asked to look for? A.—Yes.

Pelletier testified that Coakley called upon him and asked for the original papers in the Mishawum Manor case.

COULDN'T RECALL NAMES.

"I remember the list very well," said the witness. He could not recall the names of persons mentioned in it. Under cross-examination by Attorney Ranney, Pelletier testified that Harvey, in 1917, consulted him for the first time about the case against Curry.

Q.—Did Mr. Tufts ever appear in the case? A.—No, not so far as I know.

The witness then testified that the only thing he had in connection with the Curry case was a letter which had been sent him by Harvey. Attorney Hurlburt in re-direct examination again referred to the Mishawum Manor exhibit, and to the missing list of exceptions. Pelletier said that the matter had been called to his attention in a conversation with Coakley, following the latter's testimony, when Coakley was asked to find the list if he could; that Coakley had called at Pelletier's office and inquired if they were among Pelletier's papers.

"Whatever writing was on that list was in the hand of Hector Holmes."

Q.—Did you search for the list? A.—I did and could not find it.

Q.—Will you look for it again and let me have it before this trial comes to an end? A.—Yes.

BILL EXCLUDED.

Attorney Hanney asked the court how a bill of acceptance was competent in the case. After Attorney-General Allen had offered such a bill, Chief Justice Rugg said:

"How is it competent?"

Allen: "I am calling the attention of the court to Coakley's own testimony on page twenty-two of the record of the Mishawum Manor case."

Further objections by Ranney dealing with the competency of the bill introduced by the Attorney-General, on the ground that it was not the proper way to proceed, resulted in the court excluding the list.

The following letter was read to Pelletier and he acknowledged receiving it. It was dated March 25, 1921:

"In regard to the case of the Commonwealth vs. John B Curry can you not finally place on file or nolle prosse the indictment against John B. Curry?

"I should be very glad indeed to get his case finally disposed of, and it has struck me that you are now in a position to do so.

"With very kind regards, I remain,

"Very sincerely yours,

"GEORGE STANLEY HARVEY."

Another letter dated March 29, 1921, which the witness admitted was in reply, read as follows:

"Dear Mr. Harvey:

"I have your letter regarding the Curry case. I had supposed this was closed. However, I have not changed my opinion and do not feel that I care to do anything more in this case.

"Very truly yours,

"JOSEPH C. PELLETIER."

TWO BIG FIGURES IN TUFTS HEARING TODAY

District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier of Suffolk County, who took the witness-stand today at the Tufts trial and told of refusing several times the request of George Stanley Harvey to nolle prosse the case of John B. Curry. Harvey (in circle) was formerly assistant to Tufts and later his law partner.

District Attorney Pelletier's appearance on the stand caused a sensation in the Supreme Court room where the case is being heard.

WAR HERO IS FIFTH AMERICAN TO END LIFE IN PARIS SUICIDE WAVE

TRAGEDIES FOLLOW GAY CAFE LIFE

Paris, July 15.—With the discovery of the fifth American suicide in nine months, Paris has changed its name from the "City of Pleasure" to the "City of Suicides."

The story interwoven in all these tragedies is the same pitiful tale of girls and youths coming to the city of light to achieve happiness only to find in night after night at the brilliantly lit pleasure palaces a heartbreaking short cut to despair and death.

First the lovely Olive Thomas was found in her self-inflicted death after a series of "parties" in the Montmartre all-night supper dens. Then the young Princess Boshigliosi died following the suicide of her Italian aviator sweetheart.

RED CROSS NURSE A SUICIDE.

Later came the suicide in the Versailles woods of pretty Mary MacGregor, a Red Cross worker.

To these must be added the suicides of the Cromwell sisters, who jumped from the liner at Bordeaux, and the self-slaying of Mrs. Hallie Peck last year, after years of acquaintance with drugs, drinks and other "pleasures."

Last week George Harborough succumbed after a suicide pact with his own mother.

Laurence J. Kent, war veteran, whose record is just one long story of heroism, self-denial and courage in the face of difficulties, now has gone the same sordid way—an army bullet in his head and a note on the table saying that he had decided to "end it all."

Kent, who was gassed six times in the war and who was suffering from lung trouble, came to Paris telling his friends that he hoped here to forget the private troubles that were wrecking his life. Instead of forgetfulness he found only that his reawakened memories were made poignant by the sight of all the surrounding gaiety.

SENDS BULLET INTO BRAIN.

So on Saturday night, filled with despair of the future, he quietly sought the solitude of his room and sent a bullet into his brain.

The fact is that the feverish pace set by Americans in Paris is so heartbreaking that hundreds return homeward after a time spent here, literally physical wrecks.

A contributing cause is the vile quality of the alcoholic drinks, which average fully 50 per cent. below prewar quality, and above all else is the constant appeal to sensuality, whether in theatre, restaurant or dance palace.

According to estimates, American prohibition has increased the population of Paris by nearly 40,000 permanent inhabitants.

JUDGE TO REPORT ON MISS STEWART'S DEATH

Judge Sheehan will make his report to the clerk of Superior Court when he has sifted the evidence taken at the inquest on the death of Dorothy E. Stewart, young Newton Highlands girl found dead with a bullet in her head in the Plaza Hotel. Witnesses heard at the inquest, which was private, are understood to have included Dorothy's sister, Esther; a Mrs. Wilson, affiliated with the Home for Girls, and the bellboy, chambermaid and clerk of the hotel, who saw the girl come into the hostelry late at night with the man who registered as "W. P. Boyer."

No Crime to Break in Swimming Pool, Says Judge

New York, July 15.—It is no crime to go swimmin' these days—even if the crime of breaking and entering has to be perpetrated in order to do it.

Such was the decision today by Justice Hoyt in discharging fifteen boys for breaking into a public school building to swim in the pool.

"If pools are ever open they should be open these hot days," said the court, as it mopped its judicial brow.

Snapping thunder and showers broke the intense heat and high humidity of the early hours today, and the local weather man, wearing a smile for the first time in a week, issued his solemn promise that the worst was over and that tonight would be cooler and tomorrow and Sunday fair and cooler.

At noon the temperature had climbed to 78, the highest point reached by the thermometer in all New England and only four degrees below the figures at Key West, the hottest place recorded in all the United States.

The park commissioners received an order from Mayor Peters today to give the people of Charlestown more general use of the shower baths in the Sullivan square playgrounds during the hot weather.

The baths have been in operation for several weeks from 9 o'clock in the morning to 1 in the afternoon. Under the Mayor's order, they will be available until 8 in the evening. This extension of the hours, the Mayor says, is for the special benefit of the longshoremen and men who work in shops who live in the vicinity.

Heavy rains are reported to the south and west and moving on this district, bringing surcease of humid torrid weather in their train.

Charleston, S. C., had the record rainfall, with 6.14 inches for the twenty-four hours ending at 8 o'clock, and with the rain still falling in sheets.

PROVIDENCE CITIZENS OFFER SHOWER BATHS

Providence, R. I., July 15.—Despite the fact that the City Council has disapproved of a plan that will give shower baths to thousands of the children of the city, the Ballard idea of baths, such as used in the city of Boston, will be made possible through the generosity of private citizens. John Scheminger, former restaurant and hotel man and Harry D. Wemple, acting as agent for laundries, have conferred with Mayor Joseph H. Gainer and offered to defray the expenses of such baths.

STILLMAN BOAT DESCRIBED AS A LOVE DEN

Steward Describes Visits of Mrs. Leeds and "Helen"; Champagne Flowed Freely

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 15.—Amorous adventures involving James A. Stillman, the banker; Florence H. Leeds, the "chicken" of the chorus, and Helen, the mysterious society woman, aboard the financier's yacht Modesty, were told to Referee Gleason here when the trial of the celebrated divorce was continued.

The revelations were made by Frank Murphy, formerly steward on the yacht, who was called by Mrs. Stillman to support her counter charges of misconduct against her husband.

Under the guidance of John F. Brennan and John E. Mack of Mrs. Stillman's counsel, the steward described one incident of the Modesty's cruise to Miami last December, as follows:

"Mrs. Leeds and Stillman used to eat luncheon and dinner on the yacht. They usually began their meals with cocktails and had two quarts of champagne served.

"As I passed Stillman's stateroom one day, a breeze blew the curtain aside and I saw Mrs. Leeds sitting on his lap. One of his arms was around her—hugging her, and she was kissing him."

Murphy said he had been in the Stillman service since 1913, when he became the financer's valet at the house at No. 270 Park avenue, New York. Last August he went aboard the Modesty as steward, he added. The yacht was then moored in the Harlem River, the witness explained, and continued:

"Soon after going into commission, the Modesty steamed to the New York Yacht Club pier off Twenty-third street. Mr. Stillman and a woman called Helen came aboard. Stillman had a stateroom forward and the woman's stateroom was aft. They had beer, sandwiches and champagne——"

The referee's library was a tumult. The heat and humidity and the tantalizing manner in which the steward dwelt on the contraband liquid refreshments was too much for the emotions of Colonel William Rand, manager of the Stillman legal forces. He stood up suddenly and besecched the witness:

"Please don't talk about that now."

The steward grinned sympathetically and in the manner of a man skipping a line of asterisks in a French novel, continued:

"Next morning I saw that the woman's stateroom had not been slept in, but Stillman's room was all upset.

"About 11 o'clock that morning, Mrs. Leeds—"

Right there Col. Rand boomed an objection.

Murphy identified photographs of the financier and Mrs. Leeds and recalled a conversation in which the show girl told of having invested $50,000 in a piece of Miami property. The witness added:

"She wanted to know whether she had been stuck on the deal."

Mrs. Stillman scored substantial progress in her defence through the testimony of H. Phelps Clawson, the young millionaire, who submitted letters intended to refute the non-access testimony of the financier regarding Baby Guy's birth.

WARNING TO GENERAL ELECTRIC EMPLOYES

Hints of a "period of idleness" for the 9,000 employes of the General Electric Company of Lynn, unless "they are prepared to promptly and voluntarily co-operate in a wage adjustment," are contained in a warning statement given out by the joint adjustment committee. It was added that the warning did not necessarily mean a complete shutdown of the big plant. More than 800 employes of the company's plant in Taunton will be thrown out of work next week when that branch is shut down. It was said that the business in sight for the Lynn plant during the coming year was only $190,000,000, a cut of more than 50 per cent. from the $318,000,000 of 1920.

Girl Who Saw Fight Scoffs at Pastor Who Flayed Women Spectators

Marie Kelley, of Watertown, After Seeing Dempsey - Carpentier Bout, Calls Rev. Dr. Straton a "Fossilized Fogy." She Urges Women to Attend Matches to Improve Tone of Boxing.

Miss Marie Kelley, who attended the Dempsey-Carpentier fight and resents Rev. Dr. Straton's calling women's presence there "a shame to their sex."

The Rev. John Roach Straton of New York, who attacked the presence of women at the Dempsey-Carpentier fight at Jersey City, is a "fossilized fogy" who "doesn't know what he is talking about."

That is how Miss Marie Kelley of Watertown, who saw the big scrap, characterizes the Baptist preacher and his opinion.

Of course women have a right to go to prize fights, says Miss Kelley. There are lots of things in this world that are much worse. She is looking forward to the time when she can see another.

The "big go" at Jersey City was the first prize ring contest Miss Kelley ever saw and it convinced her that prize fighting is a fine thing and that women are as much entitled to enjoy its thrills as any man.

"Of course I am not in favor of having women do unmaidenly or undignified things," explained Miss Kelley at the home of her father, Thomas Kelley. "But after sitting through the preliminary bouts and watching the amin event at Jersey City I fail to see that attending a prize fight is either the one or the other.

MRS. ROOSEVELT AGREES.

"I maintain that a prize fight, well managed, is a perfectly proper thing for a woman to see, provided, of course, she is with nice people and has the nerve and the enthusiasm to appreciate boxing matches.

"There were scores of women at the big fight and not one of them fainted or misbehaved in any way that I could see. Most of them were far too much interested in seeing their favorite, Carpentier, at work."

In this Miss Kelley is voicing, in her own way, just about what Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt, another woman witness of the fight, has to say. She enjoyed the fight "very much," she said, and "thought Carpentier made a gallant fight."

But the Rev. Mr. Straton thinks differently. He attended the fight himself, presumably to get "local color" for a scathing sermon on its manifold iniquities. At least that is the reason he gave for going.

"A SHAME TO THEIR SEX."

And the sermon which followed was the talk of New York the following Sunday week. In the course of his remarks the minister denounced the women who were present as "a shame to their sex." He declared that they were the co-equals of those women of ancient Rome who sat in the benches of the Circus Maximus and applauded when gladiators were pierced by the bloody tridents, or torn limb from limb by wild beasts with whom they fought.

Miss Kelly replies thus:

"There are many reasons why it is not only permissible but desirable for women to witness prize fights. In the first place the presence of women will raise the tone of the prize ring. The clean-cut American sportsmen will see to that.

"This talk of the brutality of the prize fight is absurd. Prize fights are not brutal. They are contests of qualified athletes, demanding a high order of skill.

SAW FOOTBALL MORE BRUTAL.

"The men are trained for their work and physically fit for the contest. To call such an affair brutal is to show an ignorance of what words mean.

"I have seen football matches a lot more 'brutal' than prize fights.

"So I say to the misguided clerical gentlemen and reformers who believe that Dempsey should be arrested for assault and battery that they don't know what they are talking about. Let them first clean up the street corners of our cities where idle youths congregate and fight without science and without the spirit of sport entering into the affair at all.

"Generations ago mankind learned that by tests of skill and feats of strength are the ideals of physical fitness upheld before the young men and women of the land.

"Therefore I say to women, encourage your men folk to go to boxing matches—and go along yourself. You'll like it. I'm eager for the next opportunity to see a good fight."

POLO PLAYER BREAKS WRIST DURING FALL

Hamilton, July 15.—David H. Hostetter, Jr., of Pittsburgh, who resides in Beverly during the Summer, narrowly escaped serious injury playing polo when his horse tripped and he was thrown to the ground. He retained his presence of mind, however, and rolled from beneath the horse's hoofs. He was badly shaken up and sustained a broken wrist. He was taken to his home and treated by Dr. T. P. Johnson.

Hostetter was practicing polo with the Myopia Hunt Club at Polo Field.

Worcester Man Sobs "Goodby, Florence," as He Pulls Gun Trigger

Worcester, July 15.—George Albert Southworth committed suicide by shooting himself with a revolver because Miss Florence Blackmer, daughter of his boarding house keeper, refused to marry him.

He pulled the trigger of the gun in the presence of the girl after sobbing, "Goodby, Florence, goodby everyone," dying later at Worcester City Hospital.

In a note Southworth directs that "Nearer My God to Thee" and "Oh, Dry Those Tears" be sung at his funeral. He declares he killed himself because he was tired of living. "I have done all I can but die," he wrote, "now I am ready to die to make her a good Christian."

It is believed he referred to Miss Blackmer in the note, which he closed with two lines of poetry, reading:

"I gave, I gave my life for thee,
What hast thou done for me?"

CHOKES WIFE TO DEATH IN BED

Roxbury Negro Claims Woman Attempted to Poison Him With Iodine

John Henry, 32 years old, colored, of No. 72 Stirling street, Roxbury, surrendered to the Roxbury police today after he had choked his wife, Genevieve, 29 years old, to death.

He killed the woman, he said, after she had attempted to poison him.

According to Henry's story, his wife gave him some tea, but as he was about to drink it she stopped him, saying: "Don't drink that."

He then saw a bottle of iodine in her hand, he claimed.

Henry declared he then grabbed the woman by the throat and threw her across a bed. She made no resistance and, thinking she was still alive, he put her into bed and got into bed himself.

He woke up this morning, he says, to find her dead.

Medical Examiner Leary, after an examination of the body, declared the woman had been dead several hours.

PACKERS' WAGE CUT GRANTED BY ARBITER

Chicago, July 15.—A wage reduction and the elimination of overtime wages, affecting thousands of packing house and stock yards employes, were ordered here by Federal Judge Alschuler as United States arbitrator of packing house labor disputes.

In a decision affecting the employes of the "big five" packers, Judge Alschuler granted them permission to work their employes several extra hours each week without payment of "overtime" wages. The packers had petitioned for a five-cent an hour wage reduction.

WIFE SAYS SHE WAS CHASED FROM HOME

Worcester, July 15.—Because his wife didn't wash and iron his shirt so that he could dress and go to a ball game Emil Helantic, twenty-two years old, of No. 75 Temple street, is alleged to have chased her from the house and struck her several times before Worcester policemen could interfere. The wife in court said they had no previous trouble and Judge Winfred Whiting filed the case and the couple left court apparently happy.

'I WANT TO TELL ALL,' MOANS MRS. KABER

Accused Widow's Shrieks Cause Near Panic at Cleveland Murder Trial

By International News Service.

Cleveland, O., July 15.—Mrs. Catherine Eva Kaber, alleged husband slayer, had almost to be carried into court this morning on the verge of another collapse.

Her moans nearly caused a panic in the courtroom as restoratives were administered by physicians.

The accused widow leaned her head on the shoulder of the deputy sheriff, who sat beside her, moaning: "Don't leave me! Don't leave me!"

"I want to tell all," she kept sobbing. I want to tell all but Corrigan won't let me."

William J. Corrigan is her chief counsel.

Public feeling against the woman runs so high that extra precautions will be taken to guard her in event she escapes the death penalty.

The woman's fate will be in the hands of the jury by tonight, according to present indications, and apparently the spectre of the death chair haunts her sleeping and waking hours.

If she is sent to the electric chair, three generations of one family may be executed, as the aged mother of the accused woman and her nineteen-year-old daughter Marian, former Smith College student, are now waiting trial, and the evidence introduced against the woman now on trial involves both of them deeply.

Mrs. Erminie Colavito, the alleged "poison queen," and Salvatore Cala, "the man with the cap," who, according to his own statement was one of the assassins hired to kill Kaber, also await trial.

According to Mrs. Kaber's attorneys she is being crucified on the "altar of public opinion." Because of the trend of public opinion it was almost impossible to get witnesses for her or to induce alienists admitting her insanity to take the stand.

CONNOLLY RELATES VIVID STORY OF BURNING OF CORK

James B. Connolly, the famous New England author and journalist, who was sent to Ireland to investigate the charge that "no relief money was getting to Ireland, but was being used to buy arms for the Irish army" and that there was "no distress in Ireland anyhow," has returned filled with horror at the things he has seen and heard in that "most distressful country."

It has the vivid personal touch of the expert writer who knows what he is writing about and writes with his heart in every word.

TORTURED IRELAND.

CHAPTER V.

At Limerick Junction (not the same as the city of Limerick) 400 or more of the military were waiting to take our train. They pulled aboard, first crowding with third-class passengers, then the second and finally the first class.

Said my friend:

"They used to send them as troops in my country by their regular troop trains. But the "Boyos" along the road took to engaging the troop trains, with too many losses among the troops. You've seen innocent citizens being carried in the lorries of the Black and Tans as hostages in Dublin? Well, the passengers on this train are the hostages to insure the safety of these fighting men here with us now.

Civilian Passengers To Protect Soldiers

"And they have had it printed that there is no war in Ireland. Macready said when he took command last November, that 100 or 150 gunmen of Ireland were causing all the trouble; that he would soon kill them off and end the war. He has killed off several times 150 however, since taking them mostly from out of their homes in the middle of the night, and they are further off than they were in the beginning.

"They swept the poor East Indians down—500 of them—at once, while the poor devils were praying for justice in a public square. The Irish have prayed for justice—God knows they have—and they are praying yet, but not in public squares while English machine guns do be sweeping them off. They pray, but they are fighting, too. Fighting so well that the men of mighty England's army do not dare to travel in trains of their own in the south of Ireland."

My travelling companion and I were two of nine passengers in a double first-class compartment, the same having a seating limit of twelve. In among us piled fourteen soldiers with their rifles and duffle bags and steel hats. Of those fourteen soldiers I imagined, that two—the sergeant and one other—were up to doing soldiers' work. The others were all young, all soft in face and body, and all dull looking, except the two named. English they all were, harmless enough lads if they had been left at home. I got to wondering what drove them into this work of shooting up human beings who had never harmed them, and doing it for two shillings a day.

"Four million men, they say, all unemployed in England," said my companion.

By and by the train moved on, and by and by it stopped again. We strove to learn why, and the word came whispering back to us that an army officer in the mail van was censoring the newspapers. A Dublin paper, it seems, was to be forbidden entry into the martial law area, and this bright military Johnnie was tearing the wrappers of all the newspapers to make certain that the offending paper would not be slipped in. He must have done a good job of it. We were held up for an hour.

In other years, I have made that Dublin-to-Cork trip in about three and a half; but this train took six hours and a half.

In the lobby of the hotel in Cork, as I entered, was a davenport, and on that davenport was one of what I had already come to recognize as a Black and Tan in civilian clothes. He was stretched out full length upon it. It was a beautiful sight for the lobby of a city hotel; and his expression of insolence, as the entering guests sought the davenport as a place to deposit their coats, must have been gratifying to friends of his ilk to behold.

Eye-Witness Story of Burning of Cork

I registered first, as you have to register there, name, business and home addresses, nationality and where I had come from.

"Where do you go next?" asked the woman behind the desk.

"I'll tell you when I'm gone," I replied.

She gave me a furtively sharp look; from me her eyes roved to the Black and Tan on the davenport behind me. I could almost feel him taking an increased interest in the curve of my back.

I went up on Patrick street to look over the burnt district. It was a melancholy sight. I sought the story of it, and here it is, taken down from the lips of citizens of Cork—cool men who could prove every statement they made:

"The Black and Tans, with rifles and revolvers, began that evening by beating up citizens on the streets. The people had to take it until a party of I. R. A. came in and bombed a lorry load of Black and Tans, killing one and marking up a dozen others.

"To square up that outrage came parties from about every Black and Tan barracks in Cork. With rifles and revolvers they proceeded to shoot up the city, in some cases to blow it up with bombs. Men and boys who had not even heard of the attack were set upon and beaten. Remember that in Cork it is death to be found with arms and ammunition of any kind, so you can see what a soft thing it was for these Black and Tans travelling in groups.

Looted Shops Before Flames Gained Great Headway

"When the people were not beaten they were run off the streets at the point of a bayonet. All kinds of people, young and old, were taken from trams and jaunting cars and savagely beaten. To wind up, the Black and Tans fired volleys through the windows of people's homes.

"Having thus cleared the streets of all witnesses, as they thought, the Black and Tans now brought out hundreds of tins of petrol and many explosive bombs. They smashed shop doors and windows, poured petrol onto the walls, entered and poured petrol over the goods in the shops. Frequently they dropped bombs to get quicker action.

"Before the flames made too great headway they looted the shops. Watches, rings, all kinds of stuff from the jewelry shops were carried off in travelling bags and suit cases which they had stolen from leather goods stores. The bulkier goods were carted off by lorry loads. They helped themselves to liquor from the "pubs."

"In a few hours the flames were reddening the whole sky above the city, and by the light the drunken Black and Tans could be seen dancing like fools up and down the streets. Two or three men were burned or murdered during the orgy. Fire department were ordered not to turn out; when they attempted to they were fired upon.

"Next morning, the fire being still in full fury, some citizens of the city attempted to put out the flames, but the military fired upon them from a lorry while so doing. For two nights and two days the fire burned. Ninety-four shops and houses were burned—3,000,000 pounds of property.

The usual propaganda followed the fire. The story was given out that the fire was the work of the I. R. A. Frequently the British agents try that thing—to foist the most ridiculous thing upon the world. Finding that it won't go down, they come out and admit it—long after. Even Sir Hamar Greenwood does not now say that the Sinn Feiners set fire to Cork."

Discovers a New Term for a Liar That Never Fails

The River Lee flows through the city of Cork. On the other side of the Lee a fire was also started that night. Sir Hamar Greenwood maintained that flames from the first fire had leaped across the river and caused the second fire, which was not the first fine, round lie that Sir Hamar had put out in the British cause.

Up in Tipperary County I met a woman, who, speaking of a man of her place said: "Sure. He is a Greenwood."

I asked her what she meant by a Greenwood.

"A Hamar Greenwood—I mean a liar, but not a common liar. I mean an everyday, in-and-out liar; one that never fails you."

I had a look at what Corkmen call "Sir Hamar's leap." It was all of 300 yards between the fire in Patrick street and the river; and the river was banked with heavy stone quays on either side, and the river is a hundred yards wide, and it was a hundred yards or more beyond the river to where the second fire had started, and in between were several hundred buildings, all of brick or stone, which were not touched. It certainly was quite a leap.

That fire left thousands of men in Cork without work. I had a look among the quarters of the people who had suffered by the fire.

Take a room—the first I came to—a room, say, twelve feet square, and into that room was crowded a bed, an open fireplace where a little fire was smouldering, a small table and two chairs—the table and chairs old and battered, and the bed fitted out with pieces of bagging for both mattresses and covers. Father, mother and two younger children slept in that bed, and the three youngest children slept on the floor, having for covering more pieces of bagging, the same stored under the bed.

Seven Persons Herded Into Little Room Not Fit for Humans

They hauled them out to show me in the day time. The door of the room opened from a dark, small, blind hallway—blind except for the stairs leading up to it—and there was one small window in the room. Ten minutes in that room would have turned a stomach not used to it. They had got used to it, though even at that it was hard for seven human beings to have to live in that room from curfew (which in Cork was 8 o'clock, official time, but half-past 6 only, by the sun) and from then on through the long night until the Black and Tans would say it was safe for them to come out of their hole and breathe God's own air again in the morning. These were the sort of living quarters that men who had been put out of work by the fire were driven to.

That was the first room, I say, which I visited. Before I left Cork I saw rooms where father and mother and eight children had to live, most of them no longer than that one, and not one of them noticeably larger. (All the living rooms of the poor in Cork are small.) Some of these rooms were up under the roofs—broken roofs nearly always—and as it rains a great deal in the south of Ireland, you can imagine what sort of living quarters its poor people have to put up with.

On my second morning in Cork I was making my way in and out of some little lanes in the poor district when I got a glimpse of a bullet in the frame of one of the doorways. It was a lead bullet, and by the depth of it in the wood, it must have been fired from a revolver. I went inside to find out about that bullet. There was an entry way three feet wide with a room opening each side off it.

The door of the room to the right was open. I looked in. It was about twelve feet square. There was a Father O'Flynn sent along to show me the district—a big, fresh wholesome weight thrower who was equal to being the hero of the old Irish song:

"Here's a health to you, Father O'Flynn, Slainthe, slainthe and slainthe agin."

I couldn't help humming it as I watched him making his way among the little lanes and the warm greetings he everywhere received.

There was a worn-looking middle-aged man standing in the room. Father O'Flynn made the inquiries. This man and his wife and five children ate and slept and cooked and breathed most of their twenty-four hours in that little room.

We asked where his wife, the mother of the children, was. Then I got the story.

Volley of Shots Greets Two Women Who Merely Looked On

"Two nights before, Sunday it was, and a warm night, and curfew was just on. It was too early to be sleeping and the children were looking out through the single window, which was closed. It was safer to be closed. If they were high up in a high building they might leave it open, but as we could see, this window is not three feet above the lane. Not safe, no.

"There was a noise outside of loud voices. In the closed little room we wondered, half in terror, what was going on so near them. The military, of course, and doubtless some neighbor, was in trouble with them. And that's a terrible thing—to be listening to the like of that close by and yourself like may be to be the next—smashing in your doors with butts of the guns and axes.

"However, no smashing of doors this time. Some quarrel among themselves, which often happens, the soldiers in buff not liking too well the men of the R. I. C. Herself (the wife) went to the door to look at what it might be. She opened the door and looked out, and the neighbor who lives across the hall there looked out with her. The two of them had no sooner put their heads out—not six inches past the door they told me—and it was as much to get a breath of fresh air as to be looking—when there was a shot fired.

"And then more shots, a volley of shots. They came that soon the poor women didn't have time to draw their heads fair in. I ran out. My wife was leaning against the wall with her hand to her cheek. It was terrible, she not complaining, but the blood beginning to roll down from her. The one side of her face was all torn away, and the other poor one stunned, when another bullet hit above her ear and ran around under her scalp. She will be all right. She went out awhile ago to be gone a few minutes."

"And your wife?"

Both Wounded With British Dum-Dum Bullets

"She was taken to the hospital yesterday. I was there this morning, and I don't know yet will she live or die."

"What did the military say after the shooting?"

"They shouted something about keeping our heads inside next time, and made off. I was taken up with the poor wife and minded nothing then."

I picked the bullet out of the door frame. About a thirty-eight-caliber bullet, I estimated it.

"They have no thirty-eight's here," said Father O'Flynn. "It's 405 they use here, I think."

It was of lead, sawed off at the nose, and the impact had mushroomed it at the base. A dum-dum. Just that; that sort of a bullet which would enter a person's body, making a hole less than half an inch in diameter, but coming out, if it met with any resistance at all on the way, would tear a hole as big as a napkin ring at least. And that humane projectile and others like it were fired by an English army officer at two poor women who did not put their heads three inches past their door on the hot night of May 23 in Cork.

The names of those two women are Julia Dennehy and Katharine Farrell and they live in Burnt lane, Cork.

There was a murderous case, which I accidentally stumbled onto. Later, as I went around the country, it became only one of hundreds, some of them being more atrocious than that.

Speeches Help to Win Prizes in Retail Stores Golf

By ROBERT E. HARLOW.

Practically all of the fifty executives of Boston retail stores who participated in the golf tournament at the Commonwealth Country Club, made at least one remarkable shot while gong around the eighteen hole course.

It was a simple matter to award the prizes for lowest gross, best net, best selected nine and for the most sevens, but when it came to awarding the solid silver loving cup to the golfer who made the most difficult shot it was quite another matter.

John Shepard, 3d, of the Shepard Stores, who presided at the dinner following the tournament, would not allow any one to make a speech, but each player was called upon to recount the most difficult shot he played in the tournament. A number stated that all their shots were difficult, and a few, a very few, insisted that they had mastered the game to such an extent that no shot presented difficulties.

Four candidates were given consideration for the prize. One was John Shepard 3d. He reported that at one hole his second shot was over the green in rough; that he pitched his third dead and won with a four, when his two opponents, who were both on the green in two, took three putts. It was decided that it was not Mr. Shepard's fault because his opponents took three putts each and he could not win the prize.

* * *

Mr. McCarthy of Filene's was close to the prize when he said that he hit a second shot, from behind a rock, through a tree to within three feet of the seventeenth pin and sank a putt. This was considered too good to be true.

* * *

Frank Carey of Hovey's should have won the prize, had he spoken for himself. A member of the foursomes in which he played said Carey hit a shot into the automobiles and that the ball struck a horn, blowing it in time to warn a pedestrian who was nearby, in time to dodge the ball. This was by far the greatest and most difficult shot of the day and had Carey told about it he would have been awarded first prize.

* * *

As it was, A. W. Wright of Filene's won the beautiful solid silver cup. At the fourth tee Mr. Wright hit a tee shot which bounced on the water four times and landed on the fairway. Now, at a national championship when a professional is unfortunate enough to top a tee shot so it hits on the water, he is considered very lucky if the ball has sufficient top spin to carry it out. The ball is said to be "inspired."

* * *

According to credited reports Mr. Wright hit one which kissed the water four times and yet reached the fairway. Now that is some jumping for a golf ball and it won the prize.

* * *

The tournament brought out fifty store golfers and was a success in every way—even the dinner after the golf holding up. There was roasted chicken and everything.

* * *

Harold McNeil, of Thayer-McNeil Company, won the low gross with an 84. E. J. Frost of Filene's won the best selected nine with a 33. J. R. Griffith of Butler's won the "lottery" nine holes with a 44, and George Goldie of Filene's shot seven "sevens" to win the prize for the most naturals.

* * *

There was a tie for the best net between J. R. Griffith of Butler's and A. G. Crowley of Morse's. Their cards were: Griffith, 95—22—73; Crowley 103—30—73.

* * *

John Shepard, 3d presided at the dinner and gave all an opportunity to tell how well or badly they played. The worst gross of the day was by A. J. Buchanan of Emerson's and like all comers he says he will not win the worst gross next season.

* * *

We have an idea that H. Hodgkinson of Filene's had a whole lot to do with making the party such a success and he deserves credit. It required considerable telephoning and more patience to get the store men all lined up so that they went out in peaceful foursomes from the first tee. Hodgkinson was rewarded when his name was pulled out of the hat as the winner of the kickers' handicap competition, with a net score of 85.

* * *

Many wanted to see L. E. Kirstein of Filene's win a prize, but when he was called upon, he stated that he was not at all ambitious for a trophy. He did the round in 107 and there were many scores a lot higher than his.

The scores:

Thieves broke through the skylight of the B. Canner Furniture Company, No. 338 West Broadway, South Boston, and removed several hundred dollars' worth of cash and furniture. They ripped open a desk and strewed the contents over the floor. The store is not more than 100 feet from the Athens street police station.

PUP DISRUPTS REID DIVORCE SETTLEMENT

Millionaire and Former Wife Dispute Possession of Pekinese

New York, July 15.—A tiny Pekinese pup has disrupted the amicable settlement of the terms of the divorce decree granted Mrs. Margaret Reid, wife of Daniel G. Reid, the millionaire, and brought the couple once more into court. The grim possessor of $50,000,000 has so warm a spot in his heart for the tiny animal that he has invoked the aid of some of the best legal lights of the country to help him retain possession of it.

When Mrs. Reid obtained the divorce not long ago the millionaire agreed to pay her $30,000 a year and a lump sum of $200,000. She was to receive in addition household effects, any dispute over which was to be settled by arbitration. But now two items listed by Mrs. Reid—the pup and a painting of King George I., by Sir Thomas Lawrence, are contested by the husband. Both are at Reid's home at No. 907 Fifth avenue.

LEGISLATION TO GIVE UP ARMY CAMPS NOT READY

Washington, July 15.—Legislation providing for the abandonment of army camps has not been prepared for Congress and is not ready. Representative McKenzie, Illinois, chairman of the special House committee making a survey of War Department real estate, said today.

"Inquiries coming to the committee would seem to indicate that each particular community where a War Department activity is located," said McKenzie, "is preparing to make an effort to continue the burden of expense on the government whether the plant is needed for military purposes or not."

DISCHARGED PASTOR SEEKS 'ANY SUITABLE JOB'

Haverhill, July 15.—Discharged from his $1,500-a-year pastorate of the First Unitarian Church, Rev. Francis W. Holden declares that he is a candidate "for any suitable job that comes along."

The minister was informed by his parishioners that he would not be wanted after April 1, 1922. He declares that he knows of no reason for the sudden dismissal.

It is believed that Mr. Holden's activities in the civic life of the city led to dissatisfaction on the part of the church members.

Hultman, chairman of the State Commission on the Necessities of Life, that prices for ice cream and soft drinks in this city are too high. Mayor White made this report after a personal investigation into alleged profiteering in soda fountain refreshments. He expressed the belief that a campaign of widespread publicity in this city against the practice of overcharging would be most effective.

Except for estate or inheritance taxes, the bonds thus issued would be exempt from aNtional and State taxation.

NUXATED IRON

HOW TO MAKE MONEY TODAY

Men Who Lack Bodily and Mental Vigor, Who Are NERVOUS, Irritable and Easily Fatigued, Should Not Fail to Read This—It's Not the Smartest Man Who Always Makes the Most Money.

A New York newspaper in a very able editorial says that it isn't the gold case, the fancy chain or the jewels in a watch that make it go, but that it is the MAINSPRING. With man it is the same as with a watch—without the MAINSPRING you cannot go ahead. With it nothing can keep you back. It is plenty of iron in the blood that helps put the iron will, the iron determination, the "go ahead"—the mainspring of success and money-making in man. "Men of blood and iron" have been the rulers of the world and captains of industry of every age. Without iron, your blood loses its power to change food into living cells and tissue, and nothing you eat does you the proper amount of good—you do not get the strength out of it, and therefore you become weakened both in body and mind. There are 30,000,000,000,000 red blood corpuscles in your blood, and each one must have iron.

When you find yourself nervous, weak, irritable and easily upset, do not wait until you go all to pieces and collapse in a state of nervous prostration, but take some organic iron like Nuxated Iron at once to help enrich your blood and revitalize your worn-out, exhausted nerves. Nuxated Iron is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. It is so prepared that it is ready for almost immediate absorption and assimilation by the blood, while some physicians claim that metallic iron, which people usually take, is not absorbed at all. Nuxated Iron often increases the bodily and mental vigor of weak, run-down, nervous folks in two weeks' time.

Beware of substitutes. Look for the word "Nuxated" on every package and the letters N. I. on every tablet. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain satisfactory results. For sale by all druggists.

JAPAN ASKS AS TO SCOPE OF PARLEY

Wants to Know Extent of Discussion on Far East and Pacific Questions

By International News Service.

Washington, July 15.—Japan has asked the United States for a statement as to the scope of the proposed discussion of a Pacific and Far Eastern policy in the forthcoming disarmament conference, it was learned officially today.

State Department officials refused to state whether this government had made reply to the Japanese communication, but the impression prevailed that the State Department had forwarded an answer.

The attitude of the United States with regard to the Japanese inquiry is that it is not for this nation to determine definitely the scope of the Far Eastern discussion, but that this is a matter to be decided by the powers concerned and participating in the conference.

This government is of opinion that there should be preliminary negotiations between the parties to the conference for an exchange of views as to the breadth of the discussion. It is understood that this viewpoint has been communicated to Japan.

British Teaching Japanese Aviation

Copyright, 1921, by International News Service.

Tokio, June 26 (by Special Courier to San Francisco, July 15).—Japan, if she should go to war with the United States within the next ten years would employ against the American naval section, aviators whose original instruction was received from British naval aviation experts—experts who for the last several months have been arriving in Japan.

While disarmament talk in the United States runs high, while opponents of preparedness measures throughout the United States gain favor for their beliefs, Japan goes "feverishly on" with preparations.

British former officers, former experts and commercial designers, with mechanics to the number of fifty-nine positively, seventy-four possibly, have arrived in Japan in the last year.

The group, which is headed by Lieutenant-Colonel Meares, retired, of the British air forces, represents a business enterprise in Great Britain. Its members are finding employment in Japan far more lucrative than they could find in their own country; they are receiving some of the good post-war treatment that is due ex-service men, and they are yet in no wise the official representatives of Great Britain.

CLAIM HOLY ROLLERS DISTURB THEIR REST

Worcester, July 15.—The police have been asked to curb the prayers and incantations of members of the Pentecostal church at Rice's building on Main street, which, according to residents, are of such a nature as to disturb their rest.

The congregation, known in the vernacular as Holy Rollers swing their arms like semaphores and screech and scream to the Deity during the services, the complainants allege.

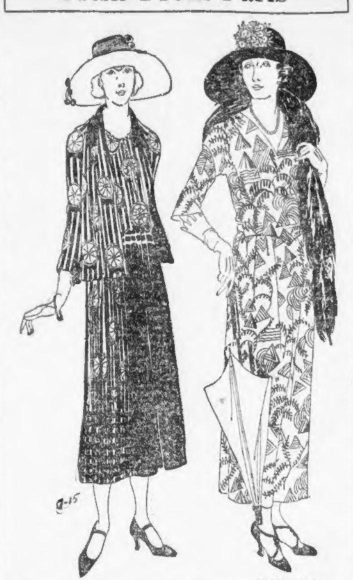
Fresh From Paris



PARIS, France.

IT is only recently that figured silks have been worn at the races, but they seem rather to be making up for lost time. The sketch at the left, of a Patou model, is of the printed silk (in blue and white stripe with a touch of red in the medallion), combined with blue Canton crepe. The full circular skirt is used, and the coat, also circular, is short and full. An unusual feature of this costume is the reversible coat, which may be worn with the crepe side out and the silk as a lining, or, as in the sketch, of the figured silk lined with blue Canton crepe. The white crepe hat is trimmed with rows of narrow blue braid and a crimson cherry or two.

PAUL POIRET also favors the figured silk, and makes of it a gown having the oddly long, slender silhouette he frequently uses. There is a suggestion of the period influence in its pointed bodice. The silk is of fir tree green, with the printed design in black, and with this frock is carried a green taffeta parasol with a smartly carved black lacquer handle. The hat is of black felt, trimmed at the front of the crown with bright colored field flowers.

METEREXPLODES HURLING MAN TO WALL

Malden Garage Employe Is Injured in Unusual Basement Blast

Explosion of a prepayment gas meter in the basement of the garage of the Lelong Battery Service Company, No. 267 Flood street, Malden, this afternoon, hurled James Hickey of No. 372 Bunker Hill street, Charlestown, across the cellar and wrecked the meter.

Hickey, who was rushed to the Malden Hospital for treatment, says that he had gone to the meter to replenish the gas supply by depositing another quarter. As he turned the lever after slipping the coin in the slot, the meter exploded with a tremendous crash. He was dashed against the rock wall of the cellar and his face and head cut.

Harold Delong, who was on the floor above, was knocked down, but was not injured. Firemen were summoned, but no damage was done to property except for the shattering of the meter.

LOSES PAY ENVELOPE IN SCUFFLE WITH MAN

Lawrence, July 15.—A summons was issued by the clerk of Lawrence District Court for Michael Morraway of Elm street on a complaint made to the police by Mary David of No. 264 Elm street, charging assault and battery. The woman told the police that she lost her pay envelope containing $20.64 during a scuffle with the man near her home as she was returning from work. She said a demand was made upon her for $60 which Morraway claimed he was owed. In the argument she dropped her coat which contained the money later found missing. She denied she knew the man.

Newport, July 15.—Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fitz Simons, who returned to Newport this week from a stay of a year and a half at Lima, Peru, will leave Monday for their camp on St. Regis Lake in the Adirondacks. He was taken there after he had walked into the Back Bay police station, declaring that he had forgotten his identity, his friends and his residence.

SEEK OPERATOR OF CAR WHICH HIT WOMAN

Chauffeur Fled After Injury to Mrs. Swimme; Owner Denies Being in Auto

Mrs. Frederick W. Swimme of No. 5 Greylock road, Allston, is confined to her home by injuries received Tuesday afternoon when she was knocked down and run over by an automobile in front of No. 118 State street.

The operator abandoned the machine, crawling out over the seat, and disappeared, while three policemen and several pedestrians were standing about the woman, according to relatives of Mrs. Swimme. He is being sought.

The automobile is owned by William J. McCarthy, of No. 246 School street, Somerville, and his brother, Arthur F., has a license to operate the machine. Both men denied they were in the machine at the time. Eight hours after the accident, at 9 o'clock Tuesday night, the automobile was reported to the Somerville police as having been stolen.

Frederic W. Swimme investigated with the aid of his attorney, and says it was a flagrant case of recklessness. The automobile ran up on the sidewalk and struck his wife, knocking her to the street, and two wheels passed over her. She was removed to the Relief Hospital and later taken home.

N. Y. BROKER IS SLAIN AT HOME OF WIFE

Caretaker, Summoned by Woman, Kills Husband and Ends Own Life

By International News Service.

Northport, L. I., July 15.—Harry G. Hemming, a New York broker, was shot dead at his wife's country home on Duck Island, four miles from here, last night, according to police, by Frank Eberhart, a caretaker for Mrs. Hemming. Eberhart then went to his own room and killed himself.

The tragedy did not become known until today, when the authorities set about trying to unravel several mysterious angles to the dual slaying.

Mrs. Hemming was a witness to the killing of her husband, to whom she had only been married two months. The couple had separated two weeks after the wedding and, according to Mrs. Hemming's story, the shooting was the result of her husband's attempt at a reconciliation.

Mrs. Hemming told the authorities her husband had tricked her into driving to her island home and that when they stopped on the way she telephoned to Eberhart to be ready to help her.

When her husband tried to force an entrance into her home, she says, Eberhart shot him.

CLEANER FROG POND IS BOYS' PLEA TO MAYOR

Peters Promises Little Chaps to Take Matter Up With Commissioners

Three little boys, averaging eight years, called on Mayor Peters today to discuss with him the advisability of having cleaner water in the Frog pond, Boston Common.

The spokesman was Thomas Ross, a bright little chap who lives at 11 Knox street. He was accompanied by Jacob Goldman, 7 Anderson street, and Albert Smith, Compton street. Young Ross explained that the boys appreciate the improvement in the conditions of the pond since the new cement bottom was put in a few weeks ago, but they submit that there has been no improvement in the quality of the water.

They brought exhibits with them to prove their case. They consisted of three quart bottles. One was filled with clear water. Another was filled with a dark liquid, a sample taken from the pond yesterday. The third was filled with a dirty-colored liquid, taken from the pond this morning. The Mayor was asked to note the contrast.

The Mayor is inclined to think the boys are right and he has promised to be their advocate with the Park Commissioners in the appeal for fresh water daily.

Cox Praises Boston American for War on Reckless Driving

By CHANNING H. COX, Governor of Massachusetts.

The endeavors of newspapers, public officials and associations to lessen the accidents caused by the careless handling of automobiles have accomplished a great deal, but there is yet much work to be done in this direction.

Not until every driver is made to understand that he must not jeopardize the lives and property of others will automobile accidents be reduced to the minimum.

The vigorous support of the Boston American in bringing home to the people of Massachusetts and New England the need of careful driving at all times has been most helpful and is deeply appreciated both by public officials and the citizens as a whole.

AUTO BLACKLIST FOR TODAY IS LOWEST

Only Two Licenses Suspended, Making Record for the Year

State Registrar Frank A. Goodwin today found it necessary to suspend the licenses of only two auto drivers for alleged violation of the auto laws.

The day's list was the lowest this year.

It may be seen from the list that much progress has been made in the aggressive campaign to avert the alarming death-toll. Mr. Goodwin revoked and suspended forty licenses each on two successive days this week and the average since the energetic crusade began has been about twenty-five a day.

Mr. Goodwin, it will be recalled, announced on Wednesday that not a serious auto accident had been reported in the preceding forty-eight hours.

While congratulating the drivers upon the caution they have demonstrated, he warned them not to cease their vigilance.

The day's list of suspensions contained the names of:

Harold Rogers, No. 86 Augustine street, Brockton. Operated in an improper manner.

Joseph W. Achin, No. 42 Mt. Vernon street, Lowell. Involved in accident resulting in death of Wilfred C. Cognac of Lowell.

GIVES 10 YEARS AS LIMIT TO LIVE WITH WIFE

Berkshire Woman, Seeking Divorce, Charges Rich Husband Had Odd Marriage Views

Pittsfield, July 15.—Selectman George Dana Knox, wealthy lumber merchant of Lee, thinks ten years is long enough for a man to live with any woman.

At least that is what he told Mrs. Knox, according to her testimony in a divorce action before Judge Edward L. Shaw, in Superior Court. She sued on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment.

Mrs. Knox testified that her husband had always been out nights, getting home between the hours 1 to 7 a. m., and when she asked him where he had been he replied:

"None of your business. If you don't like it here, get out."

STRIKING PAPER WORKERS TO STAY OUT

Ready to Keep Up Fight Until 1925; New Hampshire Troops Demobilized

Manchester, N. H., July 15.—striking employes of the International Paper Company in Franklin voted unanimously to "fight the present issue to a finish, even if it takes until 1925."

The strikers reaffirmed their determination to refrain from violence.

As the meeting was being held thirteen new strikebreakers passed by the hall, but none of the strikers left their seats, or apparently heeded the shouts of derision which greeted the breakers from sympathizers with the strikers who lined the streets.

The strikebreakers were transported to the mills by auto truck, accompanied by guards employed by the company. Seven strikebreakers left town today.

The situation at the company's mills in Berlin remains quiet.

Governor Brown, on the assurance that there was no indication of their services being required by Mayor Daniel M. Whittaker, of Franklin, ordered the demobilization of the State Guard troops, which have been held in readiness at the armories in Concord and Laconia.

The petition requesting the resignation of Mayor Whittaker of Franklin, because of his action in requesting that State troops be held in readiness, is still being circulated, and is said to have over 1,200 signatures.

Seventy-five guards, armed with shotguns, are guarding the Franklin Mills of the company.

Men Brought to Take Strikers' Places Quit

Bellows Falls, Vt., July 15.—The arrival here of twenty-one employes of the Champlain Realty Co. was the signal for a peaceful demonstration on the part of striking employes of the local mills of the International Paper Co.

The newcomers were brought here by automobile truck from White River Junction to begin the job of getting millions of feet of pulp logs out of the Connecticut River, where the material has been lying for months.

LIKING FOR MUD BED GROWS ON MAYFLOWER

Possible Defender of Cup Won by Esperanto Sticks on Bank at Gloucester

Gloucester, July 15.—Hard luck seems to hang to the Boston owned schooner Mayflower, for her tendency to stick in the mud has become acute. At her launching the schooner lodged in the banks of Essex River, and she remained there over night. Yesterday the Mayflower with 225,000 pounds of salt fish in her hold arrived from her maiden trip to the Banks and sought to make a berth at the Slade Gorton wharf at East Gloucester.

Between the wharf and Five Pound Island the keel of the Mayflower found bottom and again she lodged in the mud. She was floated unharmed on the high tide and went into her berth.

The arrival of the Mayflower was witnessed by only a few, but when the word spread that she was in port, the wharf became crowded with Gloucester men eager to get a glimpse of her, for until today the schooner had never been in this port.

Her arrival reopened the old arguments pro and con regarding her eligibility to enter the elimination contests this Fall to compete for the trophy won by the Esparanto, but the American committee having in charge the American elimination contests to be sailed off Gloucester within the next few weeks, have practically decided that she will not be "invited" to enter.

If the Esperanto, now on bottom at Sable Island is raised from her ocean bed and towed to port, she and no other vessel will go to Halifax to try to retain the cup won by her last November from the Lunenburg schooner Delewana.

At last reports, the salvaging of the Esperanto was doubtful because of the fact that the cable used in making a cradle for the pontoons being used would not hold, and four times she sank to the bottom after being brought to the surface.

This was no disappointment to local fishermen, who insist that had some powerful wrecker been sent from Halifax to Sable Island, a cradle slipped under her bottom and with the use of a heavy crane that the Gloucester fishing schooner could have been raised in less than two days and would now have been practically ready for the fishing grounds.

Military Ball Tonight at Marblehead

Miss Amory of No. 279 Beacon street, who is spending the Summer abroad with her sister, Miss Mary C. Amory, will return to this country in October. Miss Amory is an active member of the Vincent Club.

MISS MARGOT AMORY.

By BETTY ALDEN.

I notice that quite a number of North Shore matrons whose names are of the first importance in social circles, are listed as patronesses for the military pop concert and ball of Post 32, American Legion, which takes place tonight at Abbott Hall, Marblehead. The affair promises to be one of the gayest of the North Shore season. Among the patronesses are the Mesdames Walworth Pierce, Thomas G. Frothingham, Gus Lowell, James Cunningham Gray, Frank W. Stearns, William H. Rothwell, James M. Rothwell, Marion Lawrence Higgins and Robert E. Stone.

An affair which takes place this afternoon and which is calculated to attract a select gathering of the North Shore Summer folk is Mr. Thornton W. Burgess' reading from his stories of birds and animals at Horticultural Hall, Manchester. The reading, which will be followed by colored stereopticon slides, is in aid of the temporary American Memorial Children's Hospital at Rheims. Among the patronesses for the affair are Mrs. Robert W. Locke, Mrs. Francis B. Crowninshield, Mrs. M. Graeme Haughton, Mrs. George Lyman, Mrs. Charles Stewart and Mrs. Roger S. Warner.

When the S. S. Olympic and Mauretania docked at New York, the operation of the new Immigration Restriction law caused quite a bit of confusion, and spared not even those among its first cabin passengers who are of the nobility. Even Count Laszlo Szechenyi, lifemate of the former Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, had to give an accounting of himself. The Count, who is an Hungarian, finally succeeded in convincing the officials that he was here on a business trip of a few weeks and was permitted to land. Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, 2d, and her daughter, Muriel, were among the arrivals on the Olympic, which brought back a number of well-known people.

A cabaret show in the evening will follow the Navy Festival to be held at Pinegree Field, Wenham, a week from today, for the benefit of the Army and Navy Y. M. C. A. in Charlestown. Those who are to assist at the "show," which will be held in Horticultural Hall, Manchester, are Mary Sigourney, Elizabeth Caswell, Helenka Adamowska, George Ware, Jr., and Foster Trainor. Lowe's Orchestra will play.

Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice, who are so well known here, have returned from their travels in Northern Africa and are expected today at "Mirimar," their Bellevue avenue house at Newport. Tomorrow afternoon Dr. Rice will give a luncheon for 150 graduates of Harvard who are gathering in Newport for the annual Summer outing under the auspices of the New England Federation of Harvard Clubs.

I hear that Mrs. Thomas Lindsay is to entertain her sister, Mrs. Algernon Burnaby in the near future before the latter returns to England. Mrs. Burnaby has been in Washington for some time in connection with the settlement of the estate of her late mother, Mrs. Thomas Nelson Page.

Mr. William D. Hamilton of this city has sailed for Europe with his brother, Bishop John Hamilton, chancellor of the American University. Bishop Hamilton will attend the Ecumenical Congress in London.

Several of the Summer resorts seem to be finding favor in the eyes of foreign nobility. Prince Bibesco, the Rumanian Minister at Washington and Princess Bibesco have gone to Bar Harbor, Me., for a visit. Which is interesting to note, a fair-sized representation of the Hub's most select coterie is Summering at Bar Harbor.

Mr. Ellery Stedman is registered among the guests at the Crawford House, Crawford Notch, in the White Mountains.

NEWSY GOSSIP OF WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, July 15.—Mrs. Harding was hostess to a party of Washington newspaper women Thursday afternoon, taking them for a short sail on the Mayflower. Today the President and Mrs. Harding will leave for another week-end cruise.

Price De Bearn, counselor of the French Embassy, gave a dinner at the embassy in observance of Bastile Day. Among the guests were the Vice-President and Mrs. Coolidge, the Secretary of State and Mrs. Hughes, the Undersecretary and Mrs. Fletcher, the Spanish Ambassador and Senora Di Riano, Baron De Cartier, the Belgian Ambassasor and General Pershing.

Jevrem Teditch, new counselor of the Serbian Legation, has arrived in Washington.

HAPGOOD SEES TRIUMPH FOR HARDING

Credit for Administration's Good Start Shared by Hughes and Hoover

By NORMAN HAPGOOD

Staff Correspondent of the Boston American.

Washington, July 15.—The promising way in which the administration seems to be getting along with its foreign relations is visibly increasing the belief that it may be able successfully to meet its manifold problems.

It may be remembered that in May I wrote two articles stating that the whole foreign policy of this country waited on the outcome of the meeting that was to begin in London on June 20.

A little later I wrote two more articles stating that the basis for the Harding Association of Nations lay in the question of the Pacific and that the disarmament question, the Pacific question and the Association of Nations question were inseparably bound up together.

CONTENTING JAPAN.

The very fact that the plans have now been made public is sufficient assurance that they will go through. It has been the administration's policy from the beginning to obtain the agreement of Great Britain to the essentials of the plan before subjecting them to the risk of public discussion.

What Great Britain agrees to, in the joint policies of naval reduction and Asiatic policy, Japan will, of necessity, agree to, and the only requisite to contenting Japan is some arrangement that indicates courteous treatment. Her alliance with Great Britain means little now that it has been publicly made subject to the League of Nations.

France and Italy come into the naval aspect of the proposed conference mainly to avoid jealousy, as they are and will remain negligible as naval powers. It was particularly desirable to satisfy French pride, as Great Britain, aided by the United States, had prevented French jingoes from driving through the policy of taking possession of the Ruhr valley, and also the policy of backing the Polish imperialists in Upper Silesia.

AFTER FOUR MONTHS' WORK.

Whatever one's own opinions, therefore, it is a matter of mere record that in calling the conference of the five great powers, plus China, President Harding puts into public form the result of work persistently, quietly and successfully carried out for four months.

At the American end this triumph is the accomplishment of three men. President Harding, amid conflicting and bitter elements in his party, chose his course and stuck to it. The diplomatic processes were carried along with first-rate skill by Mr. Hughes. The presentations of fact about European conditions, and much imaginative thinking on the subject was furnished by Mr. Hoover.

The forecast, therefore, that if these three men were able to pull together they would triumph over the discordant elements in the party has been carried out. Also it has been shown that they are fully capable of dealing with French, British and Japanese diplomats.

DR. LE COTE, SALEM'S FRENCH LEADER, DIES

Salem, July 15.—Dr. Camil Le Cote, leader of the French-American citizens of Salem, died at his home, No. 160 Lafayette street, after an illness of a week. He was 60 years old. He had been very active in politics and had been a resident of Salem for seventeen years.

BAY STATE GIRLS FREE TO WEAR TROUSERS

Generosity of Wisconsin Solons a Bit Misdirected, Boston Women Say

By HAZEL CANNING.

Out in Wisconsin women have just been given absolute equality with men. The State Legislature has voted it to them.

As a result of this Wisconsin State Senators have most generously made a polite little speech to the ladies.

"Sisters," said they, "now you are free—even to wear trousers, if you wish to. Free even to chew tobacco, if so it pleases your fair fancy."

That, friends, is the generous thing the boys out in Wisconsin have done for their sisters. It therefore leaps to every tongue—feminine—in Massachusetts—"when, ah when, are things going to be fixed in Massachusetts, that we women will also be free to wear trousers and chew tobacco"?

The question was put to Mrs. Ida Porter Boyer, of the Boston League of Women Voters, who knows more about legislation as it affects women than a whole small army of men.

CAN DO IT HERE.

"Oh," said Mrs. Boyer, "cheer up, and don't be discouraged! Here in Massachusetts we women can wear trousers without any equalization laws. We can chew tobacco and smoke a T. D., and light up a little white cigarette, any day in the week—if we so wish. The law has nothing to do with this. It's beyond the law.

"For, most any day, in the park, I see very fair and very free ladies walk by my window in riding breeches. They happen to use 'em mostly for riding—but that's their business.

"And down South I have seen in States where the equalization of women's rights will be a long time coming whole families passing round the genial tobacco and biting off a bit, first grandma, then mother, and then little granddaughter.

WOMEN HAD THEM.

"Those Senators in Wisconsin were all wrong when they promised the trousers and the tobacco. For the women had them already."

"Indeed they did, and indeed we have here—if we care to take 'em up," Miss Florence Luscomb, also of the Boston League of Women Voters, explained.

"But what we haven't here is equal guardianship of male and female parents. A father, dying, can appoint a guardian, other than his wife, to look after the property of the children. And that guardian may make the worst decisions possible, and the wife not be able to lift a finger to have him removed.

ASK EQUAL GUARDIANSHIP.

"So, we in Massachusetts are fighting for equal guardianship. Also we're fighting for complete equal political rights for newly enfranchized women.

"In Wisconsin, now, there can be a woman governor; if so a woman can qualify. We can't have any woman governor here in Massachusetts. Neither can we have women jurors—till an amendment comes to our constitution.

"But as for trousers and tobacco—oh bless your heart. They are ours if we want 'em. They are ours—while other things, which most of us would much prefer, linger—oh so tediously—on the way."

Chamber of Commerce Enters Protest on Proposed Oil Tax

Vigorous protest against a proposed duty of 35 cents a barrel on crude oil and 25 cents a barrel on fuel oil has been made by the Boston Chamber of Commerce in the form of a telegram sent by President Morss to United States Senator Penrose and Congressman Joseph W. Fordney.

The imposition of such a duty on oil is contained in the so-called Fordney tariff measure now before the House for consideration.

The imposition of such a duty on fuel oil, President Morss in his telegram asserts, will either increase the cost of fuel originating outside this country or increase the demand upon our own fuel resources.

AUTOIST SAVES THREE SISTERS FROM DROWNING

Two Girls Had Gone to Rescue of Third in Chelsea Creek When Overcome by Tide

A stirring rescue from drowning of three sisters, who were clasped in a death grip and going down for the third time in Chelsea Creek, East Boston, was made by Harold Powers, twenty-three years old, of No. 306 Lexington street, East Boston.

The three sisters were Jennie, Mary and Florence Perons, twenty-two, eighteen and seventeen years old, respectively, of No. 243 Condon street, East Boston.

The three girls had gone in bathing in the creek opposite their home. Florence got beyond her depth and Jennie tried to rescue her. The tide, however, proved too much for Jennie and both of them were being carried out. Mary, seeing their predicament, rushed out to save them, only to suffer a like fate.

Just as the three of them were going down for the third time Harold Powers, who was driving by in his automobile, dashed into the water, clothes and all, and, after a desperate struggle, managed to drag the three of them fifty feet to the shore.

Although a crowd of two hundred stood on the shore watching the girls battle for life, not a person beside Powers had the courage to save them.

When the sisters and Powers reached the shore, the crowd lifted them out. The girls were given first aid treatment. They refused to go to a hospital and were taken to their home.

HOOVER LAUDS AID TO INJURED INDUSTRIES

Believes a Higher Sense of Service Dominates U. S. Today Than Ever Before

By International News Service.

Chicago, July 15.—Herbert C. Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, today placed the bulk of the blame for present business depression upon forces set in motion by the post-war boom.

The government is using "sanity and caution" to aid business recovery and is sure of success in correcting economic handicaps now evident, he said, in an address before the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

"This is the thirteenth industrial depression we have suffered since the Civil War," the Secretary continued. "We came through twelve of them all right and today have greater resources and no less courage, skill and intelligence than when we met these disasters.

"We do, however, have two forces working in the country of a quality never experienced before. First, we have a proved financial system that has saved us from the terrible destruction of the monetary panic that would otherwise have accompanied so tremendous a fall in values. Second, we have a higher sense of service, a widespread willingness to give aid to the injured in business.

"Thousands of firms whose cases seemed hopeless months ago, are on the road to safety. From the war we have to recover many losses and must change out productive forces in accordance with the economic shifts in the world. Spreading over all this, however, lies the fact that this is to a great degree born of the malevolent forces we set in motion by inflation.

"We must suffer a period of duress from the war and punishment for the boom, until we rebuild our virtues of hard work, frugal living, move savings, sober conduct and higher honesty. There are a few people who will not accept these hard facts who will persist in the notion that they can by various devices, avoid reaping what they have sown."

CLAIMS POLITICS WON HER JOB AS TEACHER

Salem Supervisor Gives Alleged Reasons for Miss Norton's Discharge

Salem, July 15.—Charges that Mis Agnes A. Norton, discharged assistan supervisor of physical training in th Salem schools, has admitted she go her job through politics, were mad at a school board hearing by Supervisor Frederick J. Long.

Miss Norton declared at the hear ing that Supervisor Long had advise her to take short steps and not wor too hard. She maintained that sh had been given too much to do, an that was why she had refused t teach folk dancing at one of th schools.

According to Long, Miss Norton ha made it so unpleasant for one hig school pupil that her parents too the girl from school.

The hearing closed with a motio of Committeeman Fred J. Cloutma to present the matter to the ci solicitor for consideration. The la ter sails for Europe today, so t matter will not be settled for so time.

Motion Picture News

By FRIEDA DAVIS

THE NEXT Chaplin comedies are always objects of interest. Therefore it's not strange that all eyes are focussed on the Chaplin studios in Hollywood, where the final cutting and titling is the order of the day on the next release, "The Idle Class." This picture was made under the working title of "Vanity Fair."

Rumors have crept out about the film in spite of the care of the makers to have it sprung as a sudden shock on the unsuspecting public. This is said to be authentic. Charlie Chaplin will not only be seen as Charlie Chaplin, but also as Charles Chaplin. That is, he plays a dual role; one the usual tramp and the other a well-groomed, smart young Beau Brummel.

MARION DAVIES SIGNS CONTRACT.

MARION DAVIES

er Geisler & Andrews, N. Y.

DESPITE all rumors and announcements to the contrary Marion Davies, the Cosmopolitan star, will not leave that organization, at least for five years. Miss Davies, according to word received from New York offices of the International Film Company, has just signed a contract giving the Hearst forces her services for the coming five years.

Miss Davies' contract calls for many ambitious productions. She will, she announces, look up her own stories in the large library and among the various Hearst magazines. The authors whose stories are published in these publications, which includes Cosmopolitan, Good Housekeeping, Harper's Bazaar and others, grant the International Film Co. the option on the moving picture rights to their stories.

Not only will she have the say as to her stories, but the directors and art experts who will work on her pictures are to be chosen by Miss Davies. For her first production under the new regime, she has chosen "When Knighthood Was in Flower," a story she has longed to do for some time. The objection that the public is not interested in costume pictures has been overruled.

FOR FOX'S ITALIAN COMPANY.

JOAN GORDON, who came to the fore when her work in the Fox special, "The Queen of Sheba," was praised highly by the critics, has been chosen to go to Italy where she will play in the film version of "Nero."

J. Gordon Edwards, who directed "The Queen of Sheba," predicts a brilliant future for Miss Gordon. She is leaving for Rome immediately to join the Fox company already established there.

DOLORES CASSINELLI JOINS.

TO the already sensational cast of "Peter Ibbetson," now under production at the Paramount studios on Long Island, has been Dolores Cassinelli, film star, opera singer and sculptor's model.

It is a coincidence that Miss Cassinelli will play the role of a Spanish dancer named Dolores. Tests were made of twenty actresses before the ideal type was found. This film, directed by George Fitzmaurice, adapted to the screen by Ouida Bergere from the novel by Du Maurier, and featuring Wallace Reid, Elsie Ferguson, and Elliott Dexter should be a super-picture in earnest.

MARY PICKFORD TAKES STAND.

MARY PICKFORD took the stand yesterday in defense of Marshall Neilan, the director, whom Mrs. Carrie P. Hutchinson, scenario writer, is suing for $150,000.

Mrs. Hutchinson sent a scenario to the Neilan studio that was returned as unavailable. She claims that the motion picture "Mickey," which was released by Neilan a short time afterward, was based on her story, "Jackie's Quest."

The jury yesterday saw "Mickey" on the screen and were then read the script of Mrs. Hutchinson. The decision has not yet been announced.

PICKFORDS ALL BUSY.

MEANWHILE the entire Pickford family is hard at work before the Klieg lights. Mary Pickford Fairbanks is working night and day on "Little Lord Fauntleroy." Jack Pickford is hard at work on "The Tailor-Made Man," while Lottie Pickford is playing in a Pathe release, "She Must Pay." Furthermore, little Mary Pickford Rupp, Lottie's daughter and Mary's niece, is playing in her aunt's film, "Fauntleroy."

NOW THEY'RE TEACHING IT.

WHO SAYS the movies aren't a serious business. Nobody, of course, but even if someone did, here's an argument for him. Columbia University's course in photoplay-writing has proved so popular, that four different instruction periods are given to it.

Not only that, but the college has innovated a new course, under the direction of Dr. Rowland Rogers, at one time editor of Paramount Pictographs. This course deals with the principles of visual appeal and how to apply them in actual practice.

CAMERA CLICKS.

MONROE SALISBURY, who has been lost to the screen for some months, is completing arrangements to star himself in a new production to be made under his personal supervision. This play, which has not been titled, will have a Spanish background.

HENRY B. WALTHALL, another who has not been in pictures for over a year, is returning to the movies in a Vitagraph picture, a James Oliver Curwood story. Pauline Starke will appear opposite him, while David Smith will direct.

LOIS WEBER, one of the few women-directors in the industry, plans to screen several stories written by Queen Marie of Roumania.

CLEO RIDGELY, at one time one of the most popular Paramount stars, wil come back in an important role in Betty Compson's next starring production, "The Woman in the Case."

GOLDWYN has bought the motion picture rights to the Oppenheim novel, "Nobody's Man," which will be produced soon.

MACK SENNETT has called a vacation for everyone this Summer. To make that possible, he has closed his studio in Hollywood for two months and called off work for that length of time. The reason is that they have worked so hard during the past season that the Sennett program is several pictures ahead of the releasing schedule.

NATIONAL BANK MAY TAKE OVER HANOVER TRUST

Allen Approves Plan, Declaring Savings Depositors Would Get 100 Cents on Dollar

That an understanding has been reached between the State and officials of the Boston National Bank whereby it is hoped the latter institution will be able to take over the closed Hanover Trust Company of Boston, was announced by Bank Commissioner Joseph C. Allen.

Allen has returned to Boston for a few days, from Maine, where he is spending a vacation, in order to put through the plan.

He expects to sign a petition to the joint document requesting the approval of the Supreme Court to the agreement. The details of the agreement he did not care to make public, saying he desired that the court do this.

Commissioner Allen is hopeful that the court will hold a hearing upon the petition on July 29, when all parties concerned will have an opportunity of expressing their opinion.

Should the consolidation be allowed, it is stated by officials at the State House in a position to know, the savings department depositors of the Hanover will receive 100 cents upon the dollar, while the commercial department depositors will get between sixty and sixty-five cents.

Commissioner Allen is by no means sure that the petition will be approved by the court because of a number of legal difficulties in the way. "Provided, however, the court can see its way clear to endorse our action," he said, "this is most emphatically the best means by which the depositors can get the largest returns on their money."

Mlle. Sorel Auctions Rose at Veterans' Benefit for $1,163

Paris, July 15.—The world's record price for a rose has just been paid by Enrique Jones, antiquary of Paris. The number of simoleons M. Jones shelled out was exactly $1,163.

It all resulted from Mlle. Cecile Sorel, famous comedienne, turning auctioneer for the benefit of mutilated veterans. She wasn't really there to sell flowers, but old lace, but when a piece of the latter, valued at $164, hit the ceiling for $17,000, and there was nothing left to sell, she took a rose from her corsage and offered that.

Leaving the auction rooms Mlle. Cecile stepped into a florist's for another rose. It cost her 35 cents.

NEWTON POST WILL BURY THIERRY HERO

The Newton Post of the American Legion is making arrangements for a military funeral for Frank McLoughlin of No. 42 Hale street, Newton Upper Falls, who was killed in action at Chateau Thierry, July, 1918. McLoughlin was a private in Company C, 101st Infantry of the 26th division.

NON-RESISTANT WATCHES WIFE TAKEN AWAY

Deserted Woman Also Content. All Belong to Church of Holiness

Monticello, N. Y., July 15.—Even though a man runs away with your wife and children or your husband is stolen by another woman you have no right to protest if you happen to belong to the Church of Holiness. The rules forbid it. And Mrs. Earl Verney, who lost her husband, and Pastor Clark Durea, who lost his wife and children, when Mrs. Durea and Verney eloped, are abiding by the doctrines of the church. The unordained pastor admits he stood by and watched the pair go away with the children without interference.

The forsaken wife declares, "If they are happy, I am." But she adds suggestively, "She's blamed near forty." Mrs. Verney is but twenty-five, plump, pretty and blonde. "If they finally marry, they can't be happy," she continued. "With hell raging in their hearts, how could they be?"

THEY DO IT!
We spent years experimenting with different blends of tobaccos to obtain —a new flavor
—a more pleasing aroma
—and to obtain what is more important still—the one thing that smokers have always wished a cigarette would do—
"SATISFY!"

And Chesterfields do "satisfy."

For in Chesterfields the tobaccos—Turkish, and Burley and other choice home-grown varieties—are blended differently—and better—to give you and all smokers that greater measure of cigarette enjoyment.

They Satisfy

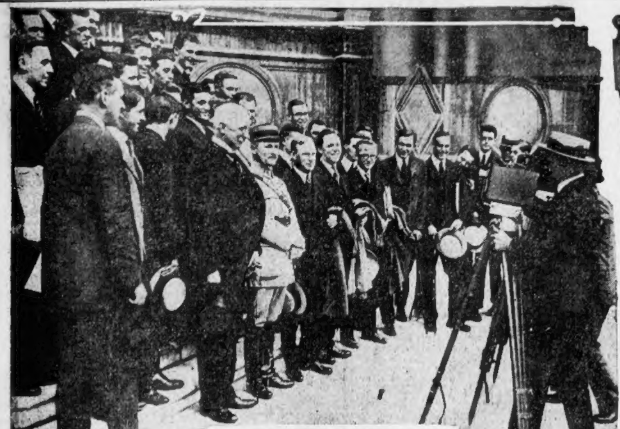
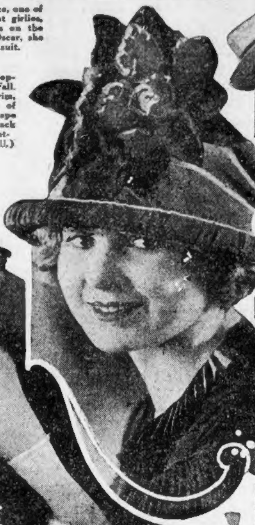
MAYOR PETERS PROVES HE ISN'T A "POOR FISH" IN THE WATER



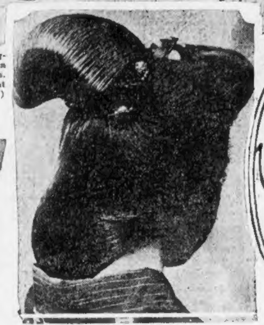
GLEEFUL GLEE CLUB! Harvard singers posing for the ubiquitous movie men on the steps of the City Hall of Paris. C. C. Moore and A. T. Davison in front with Col. Azan of the French army. (Int.)

LUCKY SUN! Betty Joyce, one of California's famous sun-kist girlies, who will twinkle her toes on the local stage shortly. No, Oscar, she does not swim in this sea suit.

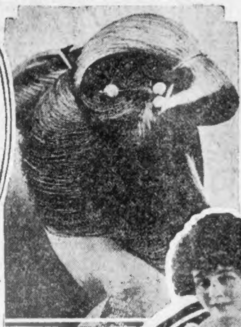


BLACK is most popular color for Fall. Here is small brim, high crown shape of black canton crepe with cluster of black velvet Poinsettas. (U. & U.)

FORE, KIND SIR! Miss Susan Fessenden of Brae Burn, one of the prominent younger women golfers of Greater Boston. Plays good game.



Wedded or Single?



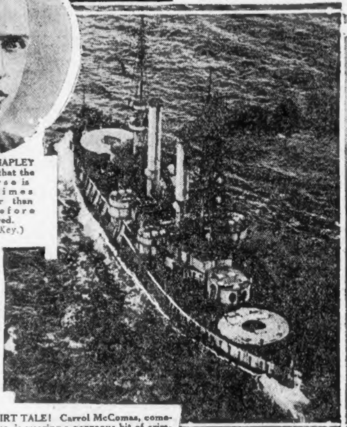
WELL, WHY NOT? If American girls wear their hearts on their sleeves, as many of the experts say, then there can be no harm if Japanese girls wear their hearts in their tresses. The hairdress of the young woman on the left shows that she is married, that on the right single. (Int.)

DR. HARLOW SHAPLEY of Harvard, who says that the universe is 1,000 times larger than ever before conceived. (Key.)

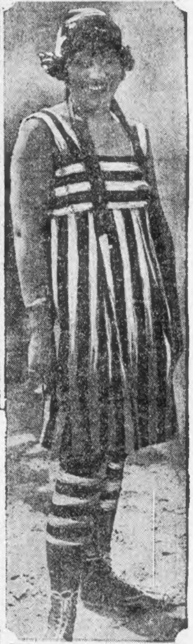
SILK AND SATIN! Boston may have its shoe style show, but California prefers a hosiery exhibit. Miss Maurine Chadwick, a bathing beauty from Venice, is right at home as a hosiery model. Won high honors in contest. (W. W.)

BLOOD AND IRON! Charles Paddock, University of California, winning final heat in 100-yard dash in 9 3-5 seconds, equalling world's record. Held at Pasadena. Field named after Paddock. (Int.)

A SKIRT TALE! Carrol McComas, comely actress, is wearing a gorgeous bit of crimson brocade, once the property of the late Empress of Austria, but she has nothing to do with the story. A suave and handsome man convinced the owner of the Frankl Galleries, N. Y., that he was the nephew of Mrs. Frank D. Vanderlip and that he would send a check for the garment. He got the dress and hasn't been seen since. Only clew he left was debts and dirty collars. (U. & U.)



CREWLESS! Not a soul was on board the U. S. S. Iowa when it was steered and controlled by radio from the U. S. S. Ohio, 5 miles away. Took place on Virginia coast. Army and navy planes "bombed" Iowa during manoeuvres. (Int.)



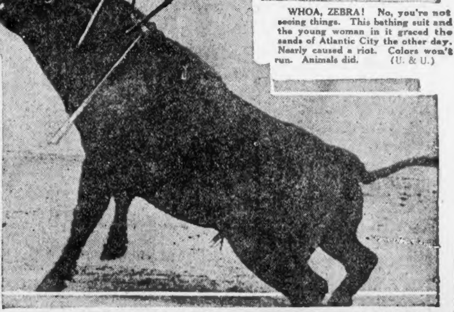
WHOA, ZEBRA! No, you're not seeing things. This bathing suit and the young woman in it graced the sands of Atlantic City the other day. Nearly caused a riot. Colors won't run. Animals did. (U. & U.)

THE ROOKERY! This clever young "bird" may yet prove a leading factor in sending the Pittsburgh Pirates pennantward. Charles "Whitey" Glazner, pitcher, has taken part in 12 games, winning eight and losing but one. Regarded as "find" of season. His first year in the major league. (Int.)

MME. VERA FOKINA, dancer, is highly incensed because she was held up by the immigration authorities on her arrival here on the Mauretania.

FLOATING SUNBEAM! The heat wave in London has no terrors for Miss Maude Allan, the dancer, who is shown practising a new dance poem in her garden at Regents Park.

'RAY FOR HIZONNER. Mayor Peters not only proved himself a regular merman, but he came "right out in church," as it were, for the one-piece bathing suits for bathers. So there, reformers, et al. The Mayor is shown with Wilburt E. Longfellow, field director of the lifesaving division of the Red Cross. Both took turns in demonstrating methods of lifesaving at Savin Hill Beach, Dorchester. Photo taken just after thrilling stunt, in which the Mayor was the hero.



A BULLY SPORT! Mr. Brisbane could find plenty of material in this photograph for one of his admirable editorials. Does the wounding of an opponent, whether man or beast, constitute the charm of many sports? Prize fighting, or football at its worst, is not as brutal as bull fighting. The "sport," of course, is not without its dangers to the human. This photo shows a maddened bull throwing its banderilleros high in the air as he drives the steel into its neck. (W. W.)

KIRBY REFEREE FOR GAMES AT STADIUM

Officials Selected for the International Games on July 23

Gustavus T. Kirby, president of the Intercollegiate Track Association, has been selected to act as referee of the International track meet in the Harvard Stadium July 23. Harvard and Yale are to oppose Cambridge and Oxford on that date.

The remaining officials are to be: Marshals, W. F. Garcelon and Major F. W. Moore and Henry Lapham of Yale; judges of finish, E. E. Babb, W. C. Prout and A. Geiger, Jr., of B. A. A. and Major F. H. Briggs of M. I. T.; timers, H. C. Von Schuckmann and R. M. Hoag of B. A. A., F. W. Wood of Boston and A. B. Coxe of Yale; starter, H. C. McGrath of B. A. A.

The managers and captains of the teams will get together and decide the details of the meet within a few hours.

Johnson Should Expose Frameup At Havana

Jack Johnson comes out of the penitentiary professing sincere repentance regarding his past and a determination to go straight and try to come back.

The first thing Johnson should do, if he is to rehabilitate himself in the eyes of the sporting world, is to tell the complete story of that affair at Havana and give the names of those concerned in it.

If he was broke, exiled, down and out and white men took advantage of this fact he will find ready forgiveness from the majority of persons in the game, but there will be others who will not be forgiven.

EX-TUFTS STAR IS SELECTED AS COACH

Madison P. Jeffrey Is Choice as Head Coach at Northeastern College

A new chapter in athletics at the School of Engineering, Northeastern College, has been opened with the appointment of Madison P. Jeffrey, Tufts '19, as head coach. Coach Jeffrey will have direct charge of varsity football and basketball and will assist Coach J. B. Pugsley in baseball.

While at Tufts the new coach had a remarkable athletic career. He was quarter and halfback on the varsity football team for three years, including the year when Tufts surprised Harvard with a 7-3 defeat. He made his letter in baseball two years as catcher. He captained his class basketball team and was the champion wrestler of the college.

'LI'L A'THA' WILL SATISFY THE PUBLIC

Says Latter Wants Dempsey Licked and That He Will Do It Gladly

Chicago, July 15.—Styling himself the next world's champion prize fighter, Jack Johnson, in his first appearance in Chicago since his release from Leavenworth, threw an audience of 5,000 negro admirers into a frenzy at the Eighth Regiment Armory when he declared that Dempsey would fall before him as Jeffries did years ago. Johnson's speech follows.

* * *

"Ladies and Gentlemen—I am glad to be with you once again and I want to thank you very much for this grand ovation. I am going to prove to you that I am a real boxer by defeating our friend, Jack Dempsey.

* * *

"If you have read the history of Jack Johnson as a boxer you will remember that I have been around the world three times and defeated all comers. I never drew the weight or color line. When I left Chicago to box James Jeffries I said that I was going to win. After the fight I said that Jeffries did not know how to box, and I now say that Dempsey does not know how either.

* * *

"I paid a debt to the public by serving one year at Leavenworth, and I am out to start anew. I went in with a smile and I came out with the same smile. I did not commit a crime, but I married a white girl, and there were two classes who decried me—the ignorant whites and the ignorant negroes.

"I am going to win my next fight, and you can bet on it. I am going to win even if the referee is against me. I knew Tex Rickard was a friend of James Jeffries, but I did not care—I beat him anyway. All I want is a chance, and I know that I will be the next world's champion.

"The public wants Dempsey whipped, and everybody knows I am the man to do it. I can beat the best of them. Look at my face. You can't see any thick lips and cauliflower ears. It does not make make any difference what Dempsey says about drawing the color line. I will manage somehow to mix it up with him.

"I will prove to the world that Jack Johnson will make good, and I will give to the former soldiers of my country the benefit of every possible effort."

JAP TENNIS STARS STAGE WORKOUT

New York, July 15.—Zenzo Shimidzu had not lost his "sea legs" when called upon for his first speech in the United States a few short hours after he landed from the "Olympic," but he was more than equal to the occasion. Undaunted by an array of champions past and present, and officers of the United States Lawn Tennis Association who had met to welcome him, he told in surprisingly good English of his appreciation of the unexpected warmth of his welcome.

Shimidzu is much the same build as Kumagae, although a little taller and perhaps a bit lighter in weight. He gives the impression of speed and endurance as he seems wiry and active. He has the same smile that has helped to make Kumagae popular with the galleries wherever he plays.

BROTHER OF MAN O' WAR IN SPEEDY TRIALS

New York, July 15.—The crowd at Empire City had an opportunity to see a fast trial by the two-year-old brother of Man o' War, My Play, which is owned by the Lexington Stable, in company with the three-year-old Serapis.

My Play worked five furlongs in 1:01 1-5 just after the second race, and gave a very impressive performance. My Play is a strapping big colt, a solid bay, and as fine a horse to look at as has been seen among the juveniles all season. He is only now getting his preliminary racing education, but appears to be a horse that will uphold the traditions of his noted family when he is sent to the post.

FANS WANT MAGNATES TO SELL BASEBALL TEAM

Latest trouble of Jack Holland, Oklahoma City magnate, is a reported move on the part of fans who don't like his methods, to force him to sell his club. Holland has combatted that by securing a vote of confidence from his players and is also being backed up by another bunch of fans who declare he is all right. Holland, whatever his faults, is a fighter, and it will be some job to oust him from his Oklahoma City holdings.

GIBBONS' MANAGER ON WAY EAST

New York, July 15.—Eddie Kane, manager of Tommy Gibbons, is en route to this city for a conference with Tex Rickard regarding a match with Georges Carpentier early in October. Rickard plans to stage the contest in the Jersey City arena in which Dempsey defeated Carpentier. Gibbons is said to want $60,000 for his end.

S. B. Y. C. TO HOLD OPEN RACE NEXT SATURDAY

The South Boston Yacht Club will hold its fourth annual open ocean race next Saturday. The race will start from the yacht club, South Boston, at 7 p. m., and will be over a fifty-mile course. The race will be open to all yachts enrolled in the Yacht Racing Union of Massachusetts.

GOING UP! HARVARD FOOTBALL TICKETS $7

Harvard football prices for season tickets for next Fall have risen. The charge last year was $5. The new price is $7, but the ticket is not good for admission to the games with Yale and Princeton. Eight games including the double-header, with Boston University and Holy Cross, which opens the schedule, are included in the season pass, making the fee $1 a game.

BRAVES OUT TO MAKE IT NINE IN A ROW

By NICK FLATLEY

Handsome Hugh McQuillan was unanimously nominated and elected to collect the ninth straight victory for the Braves at the hectic Wigwam this afternoon. Whirlwind finishes and grand general baseball have made the large orchard quite an exciting and crowded spot these torrid afternoons.

Ordinarily the place was about as thickly populated as the crater of Vesuvius, but things are something else again now. Boston has a real ball club once more, and the fans are realizing the interesting fact.

* * *

Handsome Hugh defeated the Reds with a base hit the other day, and had more stuff on the ball than he ever showed. If he's in the same trim this p. m. the ninth triumph will merely be a matter of a Brave run or two.

* * *

The Braves are merely a matter of seven games from the roof now. They didn't gain yesterday, but they didn't lose, and the fact that they cannot be shaken off at all will soon begin to worry the leaders. Both New York and the Pirates are flying, but not quite as fast as the Mitchmen.

The Pittsburghers come here next week for five games, and if the local heroes can win four of them, you can just about file your applications for World's Series seats.

* * *

The Cubs retreat after today's game, and the Cardinals open up tomorrow with a double-header.

* * *

Quite a little ball club, those battling Braves. They were called upon to fight to win their eighth straight game, and we'll inform the universe they surely did scrap. When the startled Cubs emerged from a snarling, blinding rally, they, the Cubs, had lost another pastime, and the best chance they've had of winning since their arrival here was disappearing in the dim distance on the high wind that relieved the heat considerably.

The Cubs stepped out of a pitching duel in the ninth, and clawed off a pair of runs. An error was responsible, but they got the scores. The Braves thereupon proceeded to smash out three in an efficient and to tally delightful fashion.

* * *

The champion teams are those that have the ability to rise up mightily in the pinches, and the Braves surely can do that, even better than the old miracle team did.

* * *

Ponder has been pitching remarkable baseball, until the invaders were so foolish as to step out in front of the natives. Then the youth was treated to series of base knocks that must have made him think the Brave bats were a foot wide.

The top of the batting order was up, in that last ditch. Powell hadn't got a hit all day, so he proceeded to whang a hot single to centre. Barbare hadn't hit either, so he dumped a loop safety in left. By this time the crowd was what you might call excited.

* * *

Captain William Southworth, one of the game's best bunters, dropped a little roller toward third, a perfectly placed tap that couldn't be handled. The Cubs had devoted five minutes or so setting the infield to defeat that bunt, also. Bases filled, nobody out.

* * *

Cruise swung at the first ball and hopped it to second. One run was over, and there should have been a forced play, but Hollocher dropped Terry's toss. He was undoubtedly disturbed by the inevitable.

That put matters up to Antonio Boeckel, whose fumble was responsible for the hostile surge into the run column. Antonio more than made up for the mistake. He whacked the first pitch and sent a mighty fly sailing on the breezes far over Twombley's head in centre. Two runs and curtains.

* * *

John Watson pitched almost perfect baseball, and but for the ninth-inning foozle, would have let the enemy down with four hits. He didn't give a pass until the ninth, when he handed out a pair purposely.

* * *

The preliminary eight innings of the contest were not at all spectacular, but the fuzzy finish made up for all that.

CRACK SHOTS BATTLE FOR U. S. TITLE

Chicago to Be Scene of Amateur Meet on July 22

Chicago, Ill., July 15.—The National amateur trapshooting championship will be determined at the South Shore Country Club here July 22. A large number of contestants entered so far have never appeared in championship trapshooting contests before. Most of the "newcomers" are young men.

The "jury" which will have the picking of the National champion as its duty will be faced this year with a difficult task, sportsmen say. This will be due primarily to the new young State champions taking part in the event, whose calibres are unknown to the judges.

To compete for the National amateur trapshooting championship it is first necessary for the contestant to have won the championship for his State. This is accomplished only by defeating several hundred shooters. In turn the National champion must defeat all the State champions before securing right to the National title.

Delaware will be represented by H. L. Morgan. The title in this State for years has been taken care of by Billy Foord. W. H. B. Moulton won the championship in Vermont.

In 1910 Moulton won the title, and since that time it has been won by either C. H. Burr or Doug. Barclay. Burr was runner-up this year. L. Hazlewood won in Minnesota; J. A. Fesler in Michigan; E. C. Grice in Idaho; J. H. Finch in Connecticut; S. M. Crothers in Pennsylvania; William Lambert in Oklahoma; A. E. Kroehle in Ohio; E. F. Stegman in Nebraska; R. M. Lee in Maryland; Ray Ainsworth in Kansas; W. C. Carpenter in Georgia, and Fred Shauver in Arkansas. All of these shooters broke 195 out of 200 targets or better.

Frank Wright, who won the National amateur championship the last two years, was eliminated in New York by Asher Skutt, but there are still some old standbys in the championship in Frank Troeh, Paul Earle, Nick Arie, Jimmy Day, Billy Hoon and Frank Hughes.

MEDBURY

Says a Sap Is a Guy Who Thinks Marion, Ohio, Is a Chorus Girl

A sap is a guy who thinks he's a human being, but can't prove it.

He's a guy who makes a date to meet a chorus girl at the stage entrance of the theatre and then waits all evening in front of the Old Ladies' Home.

He's got a brain, but it's so small a microbe couldn't build a nest in it.

He thinks that the Cook's Tours are excursions for servant girls.

He can answer any question you ask him and his answer is always "I don't know."

One guy wanted to bet him ten dollars that he wasn't alive and the sap wanted a few days to think it over.

He thinks the presidential chair is a rocker.

He's under the impression that Marion Ohio is a chorus girl.

He says "Everybody talks about Ziegfeld's Follies, but they never mention the good things he does."

He thinks the Singer Building is where the Grand Opera stars live.

Ask him if he knows what "mother of vinegar" is and he'll tell you that he doesn't even know the father.

He thinks an egg plant is where they raise chickens.

He imagines that Joan of Arc was Noah's daughter.

And he's under the impression that Hampton Roads is part of the Lincoln Highway.

He thought that a Virginia ham was an actor from Richmond.

He told some fellow that it was quite a coincidence that Christmas should always fall on a holiday.

When somebody asked him if he knew where Grant fell he said, "No, who tripped him?"

He doesn't know yet that "The Battle of Bull Run" wasn't a stampede in the Chicago stock yards.

When somebody asked him why Paul Revere rode a horse through the streets of Boston one morning he said, "He didn't have enough money to take a taxi."

There's one thing about a sap—he never forgets anything. You have to know something first.

MALDEN LEAGUE STARTS GOING TOMORROW

Caseys to Meet Y. M. H. A.; Games Under Control of City Park Board

The Malden City League, under the supervision of the Malden Park Board, will get under way tomorrow afternoon at Ferryway Green when the Malden K. of C. team opposes the Young Men's Hebrew Association.

This league is bound to furnish the fans of Malden and vicinity with real fast baseball as the teams comprising the league, Malden All-Stars, Malden Legion, Y. M. H. A. and the Malden K. of C. all have first-class baseball teams.

In tomorrow's game the Caseys will use Wright or Mullaney in the box, backed by Coughlin. The Y. M. H. A. will have the Saperstien brothers as a battery and it will be of interest to see how Buck Saperstien, the "Iron Man" of the Suburban League, will fare at the hands of the hard-hitting Casey team.

Dr. Eugene McCarthy and Newell Babcock have been selected as league umpires.

Robbins Is Honored

Bertrand B. Robbins of Bridgewater has been elected captain of the baseball team at the School of Engineering, Northeastern College, according to the announcement of the faculty manager of baseball, Professor J. B. Puggsey, to the student body today. The selection is a popular one. Robbins played shortstop during the past year.

COFFROTH MAY START CLUB IN NEW YORK

San Francisco Boxing Promoter Expects to Put on Shows at Polo Grounds

By W. S. Farnsworth

New York, July 15.—James W. Coffroth, for years considered the leading fight promoter in the country, will probably branch out in a few days as the owner of a boxing club right on Manhattan Island.

* * *

The famous San Francisco fistic expert has been in New York since the middle of June. It was thought he was here to get horses for his race track at Tia Juana. But the writer has learned that "Sunny Jim" has been looking over several sites and has practically obtained the consent of the managers of Benny Leonard and Jack Dempsey to fight for him at his first two shows.

* * *

It is believed Coffroth is endeavoring to get the Polo Grounds for his open-air club, and if he secures this fine plant and is successful, he may erect a building exclusively for athletic events in the Winter.

* * *

New York boxing followers would welcome Coffroth as a promoter. The successful manner in which he conducted championship fights in San Francisco has placed him at the very top of the game.

Dods Crabbing

Dode Paskert, playing with Kansas City under a fat bonus, does not find the going so easy and has begun to grab at umpires as an alibi.

BIG CROWD WILL SEE SCHOOL CONTEST

Pitchers' Battle Between Cassell and Thorpe May Develop in Boston-New York Game

By Fred C. Lane

The advance sale of tickets for the New York-Boston all scholastic game scheduled for Fenway Park Saturday indicates this affair will be the best patronized schoolboy game ever staged.

* * *

The established quality of the Boston aggregation and the reputation of the New Yorkers should mean a fast game. Never in the history of schoolboy baseball has Boston been represented by a team that has displayed such a high class brand of ball, and the hitting of the team in the Orange game was of a quality equal to the field work.

* * *

This second attempt to play this game was arranged only after considerable trouble by the manager of the Boston nine, who found it a difficult task to round up the New York players.

* * *

The game is likely to develop a pitchers' battle.

The fine performance turned in by Jimmy Cassell of the Boston team and reports sent over concerning Pitcher Thorpe indicate both are great men.

* * *

The Boston team will play Houlton High at Houlton July 23. The Houlton team boasts a clean slate this season, having won seventeen games, including a win over Portland High.

* * *

This game was arranged after Manager Bramhall had called a halt to the playing season of the Cambridge Latin game, many of the boys having accepted positions with hotels for the Summer.

N. Y. YACHT CLUB TO START CRUISE

The New York Yacht Club will resume their annual cruise this year. The fleet will rendezvous at Glen Cove on Tuesday, July 26. The first squadron run is scheduled for the following day, July 27, when the fleet will race from Glen Cove to New London; July 29, New London to Block Island; July 30, Block Island to Newport.

There will also be races at Newport on August 1 for the Astor Cups and on August 2 for the King's Cup.

SAUCE AND SASS

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

THE CHALLENGERS.

Puggs by the score say they would like to crack Jack—
They say it 'though they know that Jack can whack back,
Which leads me to the b'lief that p'rhaps they lack jack
And think they see a chance to make some dough.

The other day Moran informed the grandstand
That Jack, with ease could be, by "Mary Ann," canned,
But Martin's punch caused Frank to countermand and Admit that p'raps he wouldn't stand a show.

Jess Willard also sprung a rather neat bleat—
It seems he'd stage a wonderful defeat treat,
And yet we all recall that sad retreat feat
That Jess staged when he met Jack months ago.

Tom Gibbons is another of these wise guys,
Who says he'd handle Jack as he does prize pies,
But Tom is small and cannot well disguise size
When all the Bimboes 'round are "in the know."

And there's Darneille the cop, who's quite a sleek freak,
And others with glass jaw and arms, or weak beak—
Should Dempsey hit them, they would start a shriek week—
I'm sure of that, so tell your friends it's so.

When the Far West track men came East for the Penn Relay Carnival and Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. meet this Spring, they informed the world that it would be given an excellent demonstration of how to conduct a track meet when the National A. A. U. championships were staged at Pasadena. To date the only complaints heard have been that the California timers started their watches on the sound rather than the flash of the gun, and that the California judges were prone to name second place men as winners, and vice versa.

* * *

Outside of such little errors the meet seems to have run along very much according to Hoyle.

* * *

You couldn't accuse the judges of favoritism, according to Eastern observers of their work, for Johnny Norton, a coast product who defeated Gus Desch in one of the hurdle events, got as raw a deal as Jake Driscoll of the B. A. A., whom they claim nozed out Stevenson in the double furlong.

* * *

The alibi of the timers may be that California air is of such rare quality that the sound of the gun is heard before the flash is seen. It's a wonderful country, you know.

* * *

Attorneys for Spellman, the movie picture producer, who is suing Jack Dempsey and Kearns for $100,000, would have the world know that the champ and his manager enjoy the air and the coin of the U. S. A., but do not care to share its responsibilities, for after pointing to their war record—or lack of one—he asserts that neither has as yet voted.

* * *

All of which may lead some to contend that President Harding's complete lack of interest in the recent bout is just a "comeback" at 'em.

* * *

The Cup family is doing a lot of traveling these days. Four recent members to take the transatlantic trip are the International Polo Cup, the French Dirt Court Tennis Cup, the British Tennis Cup and the British Open Golf Cup, escorted here respectively by the American polo team, Bill Tilden, again Bill Tilden and Jack Hutchinson.

* * *

And the U. S. Open Golf Cup, in the past twelve months, has gone overseas and back again, and, should Duncan and Mitchell do what many expect them to to at Washington next week, it may travel back to Britain again.

IVER-JOHNSON NINE BEATS SHEPARD NINE

The Iver-Johnson Sporting Goods baseball team defeated the Shepard ball team by the score of 17 to 3 at the North Brighton playgrounds. The feature of the game was a home run by Brennan.

Metz Reconsiders

Frank Metz, former Brave, under whose leadership the Sioux City team had enjoyed a great spurt, but who resigned because he was criticized because the team happened to lose a game, has reconsidered and will continue as leader of the team.

WILSON MADE 10 TO 6 FAVORITE TO WIN OVER ROBINSON

[illegible]

* * *

By agreeing to meet Robinson in a decision battle, Wilson has proved himself a real champion. He could get as much money as he is receiving this p. m. by meeting an ordinary fighter in a no-decision tussle.

Marty Killilea, Wilson's manager, closed the match with Robinson so as to convince the Doubting Thomases that he is willing to clash with any legitimate challenger in a fight to a decision. As Robinson already has one referee's decision over the champion and is also credited with beating the title-holder in a no-decision frolic, he stood forth as the most dangerous contender for the title. Killilea and Wilson concluded that the best way to convince the public they were in earnest as to their claims was by taking on Robinson in a title battle.

* * *

Wilson and Robinson both report they are at the required weight, which is 158 [illegible] poundage.

Captain Tom Goode of the Back Bay station has made arrangements for handling the great throng that will storm the Arena. There will be ample policemen on hand to prevent any congestion both inside and outside of the building. The directors of the Arena A. * * *

Unlike most body punchers, Wilson does not drive his punch out straight. He starts the blow low and it gradually rises until it sinks into the pit of his rival's stomach. This is the smash that wrecked Mike O'Dowd's fighting career. O'Dowd, one of the bravest fighters that ever donned a padded glove, winced under the terrific power of Wilson's punch. Several times during the match he was ready to quit. He appealed to the referee, claiming foul, but was told that Wilson's blows were perfectly legitimate.

BOXERS MAKING MONEY IN AUSTRALIA

Sydney, Australia (By Mail)—Boxing is still booming in Australia, and good fighters are making good money. Boxers from all parts of the world are turning their eyes towards Sydney, and the bags full of letters and dope sheets each mail show how anxious they are to get in for their cut of the big dough that is being cheerfully paid out by boxing fans. What Baby Said

One dollar will be paid for each letter printed.

My little baby sister Daisy bumped her head. Her mother came over and rubbed it, saying, "Oh, the poor coco." A few days later Daisy dropped her doll and broke it. She picked the head up and ran to her mother and said, "Oo se boke her coco." That was her first sentence.

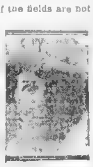
Mrs. Solomon Says—

BY HELEN ROWLAND

Copyright, 1921, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.



MANY things have I made clear unto thee, oh my Daughter, but when thou askest "What is LOVE?" I am smitten with doubts.

For the forms and the colors of the flowers of the fields are not more numerous than love's variations.

Go to! There is a thing called "love of animals," whereon every [illegible] prideth himself. Yet I say unto thee, it is far easier to love a dumb creature that [illegible] thee than NOT to love it.

For what virtue is there in loving a being, who can never rival thee, who obeyeth without question, who never answereth back, and is grateful for a kind word and a pat upon the head?

Likewise, a man taketh great credit to himself for his lifelong devotion unto a dead wife, or unto a woman who hath married another and is therefore unattainable.

And this also is exceeding simple.

[illegible] COULD he love [illegible] woman with the same devotion, were she at hand to face him across the breakfast table and the coffee urn each morning? Yea, COULD he continue to adore her, without fluctuation, were she at [illegible] each evening urging him to wear his rubbers, and forever [illegible] him as to why he was late for dinner?

And WHERE he had been?

And where he was going.

And WHY he could never find anything around the house?

And why he never wiped the mud from his shoes before entering?

And WHAT he had done with all his money?

Could he love her as madly before breakfast as after dinner, and as blindly on a rainy morning as on a moonlit evening?

Nay, verily.

For the love of animals is human and the love of the dead [illegible]

But the love of a HUMAN BEING that dwelleth beside thee, within [illegible]

Verily, verily, absence maketh love grow fonder, but proximity is its ACID TEST!

And he that loveth ONE woman from the wedding day to the [illegible] that love [illegible] all the [illegible] of the [illegible] and the [illegible] specimens of the zoological gardens!

[illegible] of the Recording Angel, he is written down as "W[illegible] Test."

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. Forbes

This is the story of two rich men—both very large employers.

* * *

One day I received an invitation from a man worth more than $100,000,000 to visit him at his palatial home. His place is noted for its wonderful beauty, for its stateliness, its dignity, its classical architecture. Inside, he began conducting me over his art gallery, which contained one of the most costly collections of paintings ever accumulated in this country. He conducted me to other rooms, also containing famous works of art. The furniture, the floor coverings, the statuary, the ornaments and everything else were a delight to the eye. Exquisite taste was everywhere evident. The cost manifestly had been a matter of indifference.

* * *

The owner of all this made his money mainly from two basic industries. While he had surrounded himself with art and beauty and ideal environment, he had never, so far as I know, spent one thousand dollars to bring to the workshops or the yards or the environment of his employes one suggestion of beauty or art, or as much as a few flower beds. His work people spent their days amid grime and heat and dirt. Everything about their environment was stark ugly. In constructing the workshops not a single thought had been given to improving the lot of the toilers; the only thought had been for improving the volume of output.

* * *

As he passed in front of one especially famous painting in which the central figure is a peasant, he expatiated upon the wondrous skill the artist had employed in depicting accurately and naturally the poise of the peasant. The thought instantly flashed through my mind, "You are tremendously interested in a toiler composed of oil and paint, but how much interested are you in many thousands of toilers composed of flesh and blood and mind and soul, toilers composed of exactly the same stuff as yourself?"

* * *

It apparently never occurred to this inordinately rich employer to try to bring to the lives of his work people the slightest smattering of beauty and art and agreeable environment which he demanded in such lavish measure for himself and his family. Apparently he saw no connection whatsoever between the humble toiler on the canvas and the humble toilers in his factories. The one manifestly meant much to him. The others evidently meant nothing. And, to be perfectly truthful, this man's workers never held him in any high regard, rather looked upon him with ill will and hate.

* * *

Another large employer invited me to visit his works and his home. All his factories were veritable palaces of glass—situated amid shrubs and flowers and lawns—with ideal roads and sidewalks. Outside and in everything was spick and span. The facilities for relaxation had been given as much attention as the facilities for producton. The huge hall, a building designed by a famous architect, was crowded at midday by workers who gathered for the daily entertainment. There were delightful lunch rooms, libraries, rest rooms, dental parlors, hospital facilities, a band, a chorus, educational classes, etc.

* * *

In contrast with the imposing factory buildings was the owner's home. It was a comfortable but wholly unpretentious old building. It nestled among giant trees and in front was an expansive lawn. As I arrived two golfers followed their balls to within a few yards of the front door, and on inquiring I discovered that the grounds were all thrown open and that a golf course had been laid out for the use of the people.

* * *

This employer also appreciates beauty and art and healthful environment. He appreciates them so highly that he has used a great deal of his money and still more of his time and thought to bringing beauty and art and healthful environment within reach of his own thousands of employes. He has not divorced the beautiful and other desirable things of life from the running of his business, but has infused them into it. He has spent more in beautifying his factories and the grounds surrounding them than in beautifying his own grounds, if you can call them his own grounds, seeing that the gates stand open to the public, with a sign that all are welcome to enter and enjoy them.

* * *

I don't expect that this man will leave any $100,000,000. He is more interested in toilers who are in the flesh than in toilers depicted on canvas. He is expressing himself, his character, his aspirations and his religion through his business activities, through his treatment of his employes, through his mode of living. Incidentally, half the profits from his business are divided among those who help him to create the profits, namely—his employes.

* * *

More Interest in Copper

Consumers are said to be showing more interest in copper and to be making an effort to stock up at a lower price than is being quoted. Former Senator Clark of Montana says sales could be effected now if producers were willing to accept less than production cost. He believes that as soon as the situation in Germany improves there will be a big demand for red metal all over Europe.

HUGE OBJECTIVE ESSENTIAL TO ALL WORLD

Lack of Ideal to Work for Handicaps Restoration of Normalcy

By C. B. EVANS.

Chicago, Ill., July 15.—In undertaking the biggest economic job it has faced since the mountains were brought forth, the world is embarrassed chiefly by its own inertia and skepticism.

The most important thing in the restoration of affairs to normal, in the establishment of straight-forward production and consumption, is the abatement of conflict among men, for war is the great destroyer. But the champions of this great cause themselves are in a dubious frame of mind, the bystander is sarcastic, and the whole world is in a state approaching indifference, only a few persons being active in the movement.

One hears remarks on all sides, showing this state of mind, and objectors and critics should take note of what has happened in the United States in the line of reform.

The adoption of prohibition in this country seems hardly short of a miracle when we remember conditions a few years ago, when he recall that men still have appetites for drink and when we appreciate the fact that the most degraded man has just as much power as a voter as the most highly developed.

The grant of suffrage to women is another change, not so wonderful perhaps, but yet a sensational event in history when we go back fifty or seventy-five years and see how the proposal was laughed at then and recall the struggles that ensued.

Nothing could give a greater stimulus to human life than the ideal of universal peace hung out in the sky of every man, woman and child as an object toward which all effort should be directed.

WORLD LACKS IDEALS.

We now seemingly have no ideals. All are trying to get a living, pay debts and get a little something ahead. We grovel in common places and deny ourselves the glorious stimulus of a great objective. The new ideal would be as important in an economic way as in a humanitarian. The establishment of peace would be a motive power beyond anything else the world has ever had, surpassing in its effect even religious zeal, fanaticism, superstition or any of the great impulses which have moved humanity.

It is dull work mending broken limbs and broken furniture, picking up the debris of the battlefield, watching the course of affairs from day to day, and wondering what part of the economic fabric will break down next, seeing industry decline, men passing out of employment and families shivering at the thought of a possible bread line next Winter.

The call of President Harding for a conference of the powers on the reduction of armaments is only the edge of an effort which it is hoped will be pushed persistently till the work is completed.

ANYTHING IS WELCOME.

One can already see that humanitarianism and business are impressed with the thought of something good coming. And one might almost say that anything is welcome which will bring the world out of its semi-discouraged mental condition.

It is good to think of these things today when one can hear the maddened French ripping down the Bastile over a gap of 132 years.

We have had war most of the time since, and have burned up our substance, and now Colonel House appears to think we are near the verge of a reversion to barbarism.

Conversations among business men indicate too little thought about such ideals. We need some ideal to work to. Even if such an ideal is never realized, it will be a help which we now greatly need.

We are groveling about among small things, we are fingering items, we are lamenting events which, being past, are beyond cure, and are trying to repair what is left to us. The merchant especially is rendered inefficient and the manufacturer uncreative because neither of them likes to look down on that lower price that he must accept for his product.

An ideal far up, and indeed far away would have a wonderfully curative effect.

Cotton Market Opening

New York, July 15.—A little buying by Wall Street and Liverpool, with covering by July shorts, gave the cotton market a steady opening today at an advance of 1 to 17 points. July showing the greatest rise. Offerings were mostly in the way of hedge selling from the South. Later, selling pressure weakened the list about 15 points from the top. Opening prices were: July, 12.85; October, 12.90; December, 13.30; January, 13.30; March, 13.53; May, 13.60 bid.

WALL ST. GOSSIP

By MONITOR

NEW YORK, July 15.—Dullness accompanied by a further tendency towards reaction again characterized the stock market, and the transactions for the day dropped off to a total of about 350,000 shares. There was little or no feature to the trading, aside from the pressure directed against certain groups and issues. There were losses of one to two points in the motors and steels, and United States Steel closed at the bottom with a net loss of 1½ points. The oils moved up and down with considerable irregularity, and closed rather weak, with pressure directed against Mexican Petroleum, Royal Dutch and Shell Transport. Among the specialties American Sumatra and Western Union stood out prominently in their weakness.

THE apathy of the buying or investing public gives the professional bears their opportunity. These operators find little outside support or interest, and in view of the indifference with which good news is received they feel that they are taking little risk in working for declines in certain vulnerable quarters of the market.

AS a matter of fact the news of the week thus far has been of a broadly constructive character, including as it does the acceptance of the disarmament suggestion by the President, the check to the bonus legislation, the prospect for payments to the railroads and the constructive work performed by the War Finance Corporation in facilitating credits for European purchases for our commodities. Under present speculative conditions little change is expected in the near future from the erratic churning up and down of prices.

ANOTHER typical mid-Summer market prevailed Thursday, with operations conducted largely by the professional element, although some outside liquidation was reported in certain stocks, notably Western Union Telegraph. The market refused to respond to such minor news developments as were announced, and save only for a few more volatile issues, was without definite trend.

WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH, which ordinarily is very inactive, after opening at 86, dropped to 81½. The selling was done by brokers who usually operate for a spectacular figure in the street.

SOME attempt was made to create better sentiment toward the steel stocks through the publication of reports of various small orders having been booked. Among these was one for 4,000 tons of girder rails for a Chicago street car company, announced by the Loraine Steel Company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation. This is the season of the year when steel railway companies usually place orders for supplies, and unnamed officials were quoted as looking hopefully toward an increase in this business.

SELLING for both long and short account made its appearance again in Chandler Motors, which made a new low for the present movement. A two-point rally was due to covering by shorts on a statement by Treasurer Samuel Regar that June retail sales throughout the country have been the largest for any one month since last October.

CONSIDERABLE attention was attracted by a decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission on live stock rates in which it was said that the rates, while not excessive, should be reduced in order to aid the live stock industry. This was taken to mean a recession from its formerly maintained position that no reduction in rates would be permitted, and was received with mixed feelings by the street.

THE American Telegraph & Telephone Company presented its report for the first six months of this year, showing net earnings of $36,380,125 as compared with $35,750,440 in the first six months of last year. The balance, after interest and dividends, is $7,573,507 as compared with $8,646,320.

DENVER & RIO GRANDE, both common and preferred, were unusually active yesterday morning, and on trading in large sized blocks advanced substantial fractions. The bidding was accredited to a large interest identified with the company, who many years ago attracted the attention of Wall Street by engineering a successful advance in Canadian Pacific and distributing the stock among the British nobility. It is understood that this interest is working on plans which it is believed will be carried to a successful conclusion, and which may result favorably to the stockholders.

THERE is not so much enthusiasm over the possible payment to the railroads of some $500,000,000 by the government as had been anticipated. Announcement is made by two of the large trans-continental lines that instead of buying new equipment they will apply their share to the payment of outstanding indebtedness and reserve the balance for working capital. Commission houses have jumped to the conclusion this money would at once be put into new equipment, and it was on this theory that buying of equipment stocks was based.

THE average market follower does not realize the extent of the advances which have occurred since June 12. This is due largely to these advances having been made one at a time when the trading fraternity was carrying some stock other than that which had advanced. Mexican Petroleum, for instance, is up more than 20 points. Baldwin Locomotive advanced 12 points, Bethlehem Steel Company B, with the unfavorable trade situation, has had an advance of 9 points, Studebaker 13 points, and so on through many of the active issues. There has been evidence of distributive selling on each advance, and commission houses again are sounding a cautionary note in their letters to clients.

A MEMBER of the firm of Sperling & Company has reached New York in the interest of a group of British and Holland bankers who, it is reported, are to repurchase their holdings in the Cities Service Company which were sold during the war. It is understood that tentative negotiations are now proceeding, although some time is likely to elapse before an official announcement is made. It is worthy of comment that these holdings were sold at prices ranging from $360 and $440 per share, and can be replaced for approximately one-third of that amount now.

SELLING which came into the market on the close was partly evening up transactions for professional traders, and perhaps in larger measure liquidation of long stock by tired holders. Mexican Petroleum reacted five points from its high of the morning. American Sumatra, which had declined more than four points in the morning and had rallied, lost most of the later gain.

U. S. STEEL was under pressure, and sold at 73, the lowest recorded since the present decline started.

BALDWIN Locomotive was inclined to be heavy all day, offerings appearing on even fractional rallies. Studebaker was perhaps the most firm of the motor group, although in this issue, too, selling was reported as for the account of firms who have been active in the recent advance. Money opened and renewed at six per cent. but advanced to 6½ before the close. Government withdrawals of $66,000,000 reduced the volume of available funds and other demands which the banks have had made upon them unexpectedly, as it is reported, which make the outlook for market funds decidedly uncertain.

BUSINESS NEEDS NEW MEN, SAYS SPILLANE

Never Was There So Much Room at Top to Face Changed Trade Conditions

By RICHARD SPILLANE.

Philadelphia, July 15.—A man who worked with pick and shovel twenty odd years ago declined the presidency of a fairly prominent corporation the other day. The salary was $72,000 a year.

"I can do better work where I am," was his answer when pressed to accept. "I want to do the things I can do well, and I'm past the stage of money hunger."

Past the stage of money hunger. Who ever heard of such a thing? More interested in doing the things he knows he can do well than in getting a lordly salary! Why, there must be something queer about the man.

KIND OF MAN NEEDED.

And yet a load of industrial concerns are looking for men of his ability and not a few banks need officers of his mental attitude to direct them.

There are to be more changes in high places in banking and industrial circles within the next six months than in any other six months in the last twenty-five years. Never was there so much room at the top.

This is not surprising. The conditions in the last seven years have been unprecedented. The swings have been unparalleled. Only the strongest of men have been able to hold themselves well in hand.

From the days in 1914, when the moratorium paralyzed everything, to the crazy boom days that came in the next year and then the financial pyrotechnics and mushroom millionaire crop of 1917 and 1918 and later a slump with the armistice followed by the wildest profiteering in world history and then collapse—a man had to possess extraordinary self-control not to be swayed by the times.

UTTERLY UNPREPARED.

Nothing showed the weakness, if not incapacity, of many leaders in their respective fields, as their utter unpreparedness for the period of liquidation. It is because of the great losses their lack of foresight entailed that they must make way for abler and better men.

There is going to be a house cleaning. It will be done gracefully and without raising much dust. Men who as presidents of bodies have been the active heads of the organizations will retire with many expressions of regret from their associations, or, if their financial interests are large, they will be promoted to be chairman of the board.

This latter procedure is like the British custom of "kicking a gentleman upstairs" as they term elevating him to the House of Lords when he has outlived his usefulness in the Commons.

STOCKHOLDERS ARE CRITICAL.

It is strange how critical stockholders become of corporation heads when the properties are not making money. They even complain of stock tickers in the offices and seem to think the officials would serve the business better if they gave less attention to market quotations.

In banking circles the criticism has been as pronounced almost as in the industrial coterie.

The Stillman case gave point to many stories that left a bad taste in the mouth of Wall Street.

The man who says this is not a time of opportunity doesn't know. There always is room at the top, but never so much as now. What is true of New York is true in a degree of every other section of the country.

Big brainy men of vision and high ability are in demand. They must be of the type that glory in doing things well rather than those who measure success by the bank account. That doesn't mean they should not have large monetary reward. Not at all.

But they must not be of the class subject to rush of money to the head, for that is what has made the present situation worse than otherwise it would be.

OILS LED RALLY LATE IN THE MORNING

But Most Issues Show Losses at Noon; Steels Participate in the Advance

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were irregular in New York at noon, but most of them were still showing losses. Oils led the rally in the second hour, but steels were participants. Some covering of shorts caused an advance for a number of issues Crucible recovered its dividend and a little more. Famous Players sold at a new 1921 low.

Among issues to show the largest morning losses were Famous Players Sumatra, American Woolen common, Bethlehem B, Pan-American, Sears Roebuck and United Shoe. At the bottom they were off from one to more than three points. Trading was quiet, first hour transactions approximately 110,000 shares.

At the end of the morning Mexican Petroleum was up 1 5-8, and among other strong issues were Studebaker, U. S. Steel, General Asphalt, Anaconda, Chandler and Atlantic Gulf.

Call money opened at 6 per cent. Foreign exchange rates were lower, demand sterling receding more than a cent to $3.62.

EARLY PRESSURE ON STEELS.

Bears resumed pressure on steel stocks at the start and they were prominent in the recessional which marked the opening. Both Westinghouse and Western Union sold at new lows for the year, and Doheny oils yielded quickly, while tobaccos were lower. Sugars and motors eased off and rail losses averaged small. A number of specialties reflected the general movement. It was downward for thirty minutes when there was a pause in the descent, and a few issues rallied. The borrowing demand for stocks increased a little after the exchange closed yesterday, and the market is working back into the technical shape it presented before the rally early in the week. The drive against Western Union was based upon the big decrease in its income during the first half of this year. Wire business has suffered severely in the general depression.

RESERVE SYSTEM STRENGTH.

The latest report by the Federal Reserve system as to reserve ratio showed the improvement expected in banking circles, it being 61.6 against 60.0 a week ago. The Boston figure is 76.1, against 75.4, and the highest in the country. New York showed nearly 2 per cent. gain, moving up from 66.8 to 68.7. The money situation is not to blame for stock market weakness. Although the call rate has been 6 per cent. or higher this week, it is believed that after today's settlements money will be abundant at a lower figure. Government withdrawals today total about $132,000,000, but banks cannot be said to have felt much strain. Besides U. S. Treasury requirements, the westward movement of crop money has begun. For some time at least government requirements are likely to be small and there will be no shortage of funds for either business or speculation.

WEAK TONE TO THE BOSTON MARKET

Local Trading Lethargic All the Morning; Curb Dull, but Is Steady

Trading on the Boston stock exchange was lethargic all the forenoon. The market began with a weak tone and showed no betterment. As a rule, fluctuations were narrow. Midsummer lassitude was reflected in commission house attendance. Calumet & Hecla and General Electric receded 2 points during the first hour and point losses were sustained by International Cotton Mills and Boston & Maine C and D. Coppers were irregular, and the only packing issue to figure in early trading was Swift & Co. It dropped a fraction.

There were fractional gains by Waldorf, New Cornelia, East Butte, Boston & Maine, Massachusetts Gas and Gardner Motor. Among issues to decline fractionally were Mexican Investment, Walworth, Davis Daly, New Haven, United Fruit, United Shoe, American Sugar, American Woolen preferred, Arizona Commercial and West End.

CURB VERY DULL.

The Curb has seldom been so sluggish as it was this morning. At the opening one issue was up, three off and five sold at a price unchanged from the Thursday close. Boston & Montana was the most conspicuous issue. The tone improved a little. At the end of an hour Boston & Montana was up 1 cent at 60 cents, and United Verde Extension 1½ at 25 cents. Alpha was off 1 cent at 75 cents, and Verde Mines had recovered a two-cent loss.

BOSTON FINANCIAL NOTES

President Fay reports that Mayflower-Old Colony has about $70,000 in its treasury, including a comparatively small amount of unpaid assessments.

New England Trust Co. directors have appointed Assistant Secretary Leo William Huegle as secretary in place of the late Charles E. Nott.

If American Telephone's equity in the undivided earnings of associate corporations is added to its $7,573,507 earnings for the first half of this year the company will show earnings exceeding $12,000,000 for the period. It earned its dividends with a wide maragin.

Boston Harbor More Active

There was more activity in Boston Harbor in June, vessel movements at this port attaining the largest monthly figure in several years. In June 165 commercial vessels entered this port against 137 in May, 60 being of American registry. In June last arrivals totaled 139. June sailings were 120, a jump of 29 over May. In June a year ago the departures totaled 106. Despite foreign trade the cargo tonnage of 332,971 handler at the port in June exceeded the May total by 53,890 tons. The June, 1920, tonnage aggregated 332,541 tons.

Gold Importations

During the last ten days of June importations of gold amounted to $8,565,783, bringing the total for the half-year up to $346,360,087. Exports of silver from the United States for the half-year totaled $21,041,595.

$6,000 Songs Title Test Now Settles Down to 28-Day Battle of Wits

With no more printings of Back Pictures, and no more "new members" to be received, the Boston American's $6,000 Songs of the World Title Test today settles down into a twenty-eight-day battle of wits between the Test artist, on one side, and thousands of readers on the other. Go get him!

Today's picture is No. 32. Its Correct Title will be found in the List of Titles printed on this page.

The Correct Title of Picture No. 29, by the way, also is in today's list. The long List of Titles printed yesterday and the day before contained the Correct Titles of all the pictures UP TO No. 29; that is, of pictures No. 1 to No. 28, inclusive. The Correct Titles of Nos. 29, 30 and 31 are in the shorter list printed today.

CHANGES OF LISTS.

Please remember that the List of Titles may be changed AT ANY TIME. There may be a new List of Titles every day. On the other hand, the same List of Titles may remain standing several days. The guarantee is that "Today's List of Titles (every day) contains the Correct Title of today's Test Picture." One title in the list fits the picture better than any other title.

Understanding that back numbers of the Boston American are not to be obtained from this office—the statement has been made and repeated time and time again—participants who intend to "stick" for the twenty-eight Test days which remain undoubtedly have served the proper notice on Mr. Newsdealer.

If, for any reason, you have not placed a standing order for the paper, do it now. Tell the dealer you are taking part in the $6,000 Songs of the World Title Test and MUST have the paper every day. Have a definite understanding about it. Then, if anything goes wrong, write to the Title Test Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass.

READ RULES CAREFULLY.

It will solve difficulties for everybody if you will read the Rules of the Test carefully. If you are still in doubt about anything connected with the Test after reading them, address your questions to the Test Editor, as above, being careful to enclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope. Everybody in this office is too busy to waste time over anonymous letters.

The artist, you of course understand, is not trying to help you find the Correct Titles for the pictures. It is his business to outwit you, if he can. There have been, and perhaps there will be, days on which the Correct Title can be found in less than a minute. On other occasions the job will call for patience, determination and some "digging."

The Title Test Editor is referee. With a fair field for all, no favors for anyone, he wants the best 220 of you to take the awards. And he wants everybody to derive so much entertainment from the Test that when it is ended all hands will be satisfied.

RULES OF SONG TITLE TEST.

The Boston American Songs of the World Title Test is a test of skill and judgment open to all readers of the Boston American, irrespective of age, living in any city or town in New England or Canada.

Two hundred and twenty cash awards will be given by this newspaper to its readers who submit the largest percentage of correct titles to the sixty pictures to be published one each day consecutively (Sundays excepted) in the Boston American.

All employes of the Boston American and their families are absolutely barred from participating in the awards.

The test will consist of 60 pictures, each representing the title of a well-known song to be printed one each day in the Boston American; the first picture on Wednesday, June 8, 1921.

Participation in any other contest which has been run, which is now running or which may be run by the Boston American will not debar anyone from entering this test.

Every participant or any or all members of a family will be allowed to submit one set of pictures, but each set must contain only ONE TITLE to each picture, and no participant shall be entitled to more than one award and not more than one award shall be given in any one family.

Each and every title must be neatly written or printed on the coupon furnished by the Boston American, or on a page of some book form by itself, accompanied either by the picture furnished by the Boston American, or a pen or pencil copy thereof, and must have the name, residence, etc., of the participant on each title blank.

Do not send your titles in "list" form, i. e., do not write titles under one another on a piece of paper.

In case there are not complete sets of correct titles, awards will be given to the person submitting the nearest correct solutions, giving weight to skill and judgment.

In case of a tie awards will be made on the basis of neatness, judgment and accuracy, but if the tie cannot be decided in that way the tied participants will receive similar awards.

Under no circumstances should participants send in their titles before the end of the Test, as any sent in before the last picture is printed will not be considered. KEEP your titles from day to day and at the end of the Test arrange them in numerical order and then send them in all together at one time.

Time will not be a factor in making the awards. The first titles sent in after the Test closes will stand no better than the last submitted.

All titles must be delivered to the Boston American title headquarters, at No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., either by mail or in person within the specified time limit which will be announced later.

All envelopes or packages containing titles must be legibly addressed as follows: "Song Title Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., P. O. Box 239," and each envelope or package must bear the name and address of the sender legibly written or stamped on the upper left-hand corner.

As all pictures in the Test will contain written or printed matter, if mailed, it is absolutely necessary that the packages be fully character goes to the postoffice as first-class matter. The Boston American reserves the right to refuse to consider any sets of titles on which charges for postal delivery are not fully prepaid.

There will be no title or answer book to buy. Lists of Song Titles will be printed in the Boston American. The list appearing will contain among others the correct titles.

Participants who desire further information should address their inquiries to the Song Title Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass. Questions will be answered as far as possible through the columns of the Boston American. If participants desire personal replies, they should enclose sufficient postage for such a reply, or they may phone Main 5190 or call in person.

The Boston American reserves the right to make any change in or addition to these conditions that it may deem necessary for fairly and properly conducting the Test, and the decision of the Boston American Song Title Editor on any question which may arise will be absolutely final, and the entry of a participant is a complete acceptance of all conditions and regulations now made or to be made.

PAPER HANGERS TAKE CUT OF TEN CENTS

Worcester, July 15.—The Paper Hangers' Union has taken a voluntary cut of 10 cents an hour, which has been passed along to the public, according to Philip H. Miller, president, who says it was adopted in spite of the fact that the union had an agreement with the employers running to April 1, 1922, calling for $1 an hour.

The Correct Title Is Here

Participants in the $6,000 Songs of the World Title Test will find the correct title of today's picture in the following list. This will be true every day throughout the Test. The List of Titles may be changed without notice. Send in no pictures or titles before the end of the Test:

WELLESLEY WOMEN URGED TO JOIN LEAGUE

Thirteen hundred registered women voters of Wellesley have received letters from Mrs. Paul V. Bacon inviting them to join the Wellesley League of Women Voters. Mrs. Bacon states that the purposes of the league are to promote education in citizenship, to interest women in legislation, to co-operateate with other town organizations for community good. The league, Mrs. Bacon points out, is non-partisan, and most efficient when women of every political faith are members.

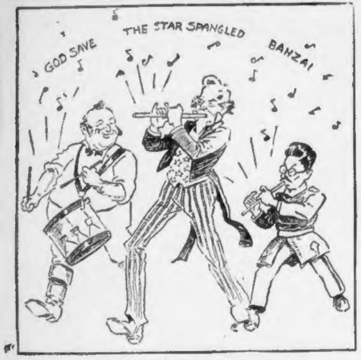
ONE of Them Doesn't Like the Tune

You Can Guess Which One It Is

Copyright, 1921, Star Company



THE SPIRIT OF 1921—AS JOHN BULL WOULD HAVE IT

This is the international tune, as very well illustrated in a cartoon issued by the George Matthew Adams Service. The cartoon and the marching would suit our old friend John Bull and our young friend Mr. Brown Jap well enough if they could arrange it. But it doesn't QUITE suit Uncle Sam. He prefers playing his own tune all through and playing it ALONE, as hitherto.

This picture is republished because it represents admirably what is known as "Far Eastern Diplomacy."

Heaven knows where Uncle Sam would march if John Bull and Mr. Jap could get him between them, marching as shown here. But they won't get him, the old gentleman is still too wise.

De Valera's Victories Show Power of Steadfastness

There has not been presented to the world in many years such an example of the power of steadfastness united with righteousness to accomplish almost the impossible, as that now being presented by the Irish people.

We in New England remember President De Valera's coming to Boston. We gave him a splendid reception. But we know how little we then really expected poor Ireland to accomplish against the great sprawling British Empire.

There were many of us who presumed to advise Mr. De Valera concerning how much to demand for Ireland from the British Government. Most of those who thought that the demands should be minimum demands were honest, but Mr. De Valera knew best, and most of us yielded to his judgment. We remembered how he returned like a fugitive to Ireland, like a fugitive in the night. We remembered how poor and depleted Ireland is, with less than one-half the population she had 100 years ago, without arms or munitions, under the very paw of the British lion, and crowded with British troops and with one province disloyal.

We remembered our seven years' struggle when we were nearly one-third in population to the then Great Britain and 3,000 miles away, with only the power of sails bridging the gulf and with a great stretch of 2,000 miles of territory in which to operate, in which to march and counter march, retreat and advance. We remembered that it took seven years of long and doubtful struggle to win our independence.

But President De Valera and his associates, with one hundred times more difficulties, have already forced the British Empire to solicit a conference with him, and he who was dragged through the streets of the British cities in chains only a little while ago now goes back under the protection of the British Government, almost like a loyal guest, to meet on terms of equality and negotiate for his people with the highest of Britain's representatives.

There is in this to New Englanders a great lesson in the power of the truth to prevail. What strengthened the hands of Mr. De Valera and his associates was the absolute certainty that they were right and that every intelligent and fair-minded person in the world knew in his heart that they were right, no matter how little he might be willing to acknowledge it.

Whether these negotiations bear fruit or do not, they show the power of the Irish Republican Army and the effectiveness of the resistance which they are making to British tyranny.

If the people of India show equal resolution, they, too, will be free. In the meantime those who have Irish blood in their veins must be thrilled.

For Lower Lighting Charges

Boston American Instrumental in Starting Contests Throughout State

Two weeks ago, Mr. MacFarland, attorney for the Boston American, which, with the city of Boston, is contesting for the lowering of the charges for electricity by the Boston Edison Electric Illuminating Company, was invited by Mayor White of Lawrence to give reasons why the city of Lawrence should start similar proceedings against its electric lighting company.

The city of Lawrence, after hearing Mr. MacFarland, voted unanimously to bring proceedings against the Lawrence Gas Company and appropriated $10,000 to pay the necessary expenses. Since then thirty-eight cities and towns have joined in the general contest for lowering electric lighting charges.

Mr. Hill, corporation counsel for the city of Boston, is doing splendid work in this direction, and before these contests are over we are convinced that the people of the State will have cause to feel grateful to the city of Boston, acting through Mr. Hill, and to the Boston American.

An Ode to Time

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Ho! Sportsman Time, whose chargers fleet
The moments, madly driven,
Beat in the dust beneath their feet
Sweet hopes that years have given;
Turn, turn aside those reckless steeds,
Oh! do not urge them my way;
There's nothing that Time wants or needs
In this contented by-way.

You have down-trodden in your race
So much that proves your power,
Why not avoid my humble place—
Why robe me of my dower?
With your vast cellars, cavern deep,
Packed tier on tier with treasures,
You would not miss them should I keep
My little store of pleasures.

As one who, frightened, flying flings
Her riches down at random,
Your course is paved with precious things
Life casts before your tandem.
The warrior's fame, the conqueror's crowns
Great creeds for ages cherished
Beneath your chariot wheels were thrown,
And, crushed to earth, they perished.
Although to just and generous deeds
Your heart is not a stranger,
I have the feeling that one needs
To guard his wealth from danger;
And though a most heroic light
Oft on your pathway lingers,
I'll hide my treasures, if I might,
From contact with your fingers.

You are the loyal friend of Truth;
Go seek her, make her stronger,
And leave the remnant of my youth
To me a little longer.
There's work enough for you before
Eternity shall wed you;
Why stoop to steal my simple store—
Why make me shun and dread you?

You do not need my joys, I say,
Home, love and friends united;
I beg you turn and go the way
Where wrong waits to be righted.
Or pause, and let us chat awhile,
I'll listen (not too near you),
For oh; no matter how you smile,
I fear you, Time, I fear you.

Results to Date of Prohibition

"What Has Prohibition Actually Accomplished to Date?" asked William Randolph Hearst editorially in the Boston American of July 2. One hundred dollars will be paid for the best answer of not more than 150 words.

Greatest Farce

Editor Boston American:

Prohibition is responsible for the loss of an immense revenue; the forecast of a stupendous sum for its enforcement; a feeling of satisfaction in those who have stored up a supply for ad lib. use; the engendered opposite feeling of those who only want a drink (the drunkard exists under any law, and his fatal dose is always on the way).

It has partly eliminated the open saloon, and has vastly increased the number of pseudo breweries and distilleries manufacturing concoctions which beget murder, suicide, and all the gruesome horrors; fewer arrests, although more egregious drunks, the knowledge by those who have to do with all kinds of people that prohibition and its enforcement to date is the greatest farce that was ever perpetrated in freedom's realm, and that its insidiously unfranking the citizenry; a general feeling that local option is the safety valve to the civil war cloud that looms up in the very near future.

Once-Overs

Copyright, 1921, International Feature Service, Inc.

CHEER UP.

When you have had some misfortune, and you are tired and discouraged, what do you do?

Mope around and mull over your hard luck experiences?

Do you allow your mind to dwell on such a subject till you become despondent and almost ready to give up trying to better your situation?

Why add to your present trouble by connecting with it all the trouble you have had in the past?

Is there any possible chance of such thoughts helping the situation?

Isn't it true that the more you think of misfortune you have had the less able you are to plan some way of overcoming your latest setback?

SOLITUDE TEACHES MUCH TO MAN

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

Do you care to be alone? Do you dare to be alone?

Do you really love and respect yourself enough, at least occasionally, to seek the bliss of solitude?

You would actually find yourself much better company than you had imagined, if you cared and dared to seek for, and then to give yourself, such conditions of aloofness as alone can furnish you the chance to become acquainted with yourself.

Do you realize how impertinently we live on top of each other?

More than ever before, we can say that the world is too much with us. Therefore, some of us, at any rate, sigh for a lodge in some vast wilderness, where for a while we can get away from the constantly intruding world.

A Robinson Crusoe

Can you imagine yourself sighing sufficiently earnestly and sincerely for solitude to become a Robinson Crusoe, for even a limited period?

Well, then, why didn't you answer the request of Edward Hatch, who advertises every year for a man that is willing to live alone, without pay, and with no other work than to keep the poachers away from Four Brothers Island, which he has set aside as a breeding place for sea gulls, in a lake near Burlington, Vermont?

Perhaps you did not answer because you could not afford the time, or you are unable to work without compensation—or you are not sufficiently enamored of yourself to be willing to be doomed to a diet of yourself solely for three months.

However, a Harvard graduate was signed up for this season to be the sea gulls' lonely Summer guardian. And there were 1,600 applicants, among them lawyers, poets, artists, authors and naturalists—ready to play the role of Robinson Crusoe!

Lonesome Lawyer

One wonders what good it would do a lawyer to be alone. He would have to find at least a man Friday to start something!

But poets, artists, authors and naturalists—these are the folk that thrive on solitude! These, in the love of nature, hold communion with her visible forms and hear her various language.

* * *

Of course it is not necessary to run away into the wilds in order to find solitude. One may be alone in a crowd. Even at home you can leave the rest.

And it is really sweet to be alone! Sad, perhaps, until you grow used to it. But increasingly beautiful, and fruitful.

Try the experiment. The next time the folks go to the movies, you stay at home. Sit at home with the cause, as one of our great essayists puts it.

Solitude will gratify you with its lessons. You will be happily surprised at your discoveries—of yourself and your hidden resources.

Why, think you, were those 1,600 men willing to live alone for three months, and without other pay than the satisfactions they could win from solitude?

Easier to Be True

Precisely for that reason! Just because we all need to be alone in order to be ourselves. Because it is easiest so to be true to ourselves.

Indeed, the unescapable condition of human life is such that, in the last analysis, we must live alone all its most significant phases and problems.

Of average experience it is true: that sorrows shared are sorrows halved, joys shared are joys doubled.

But in the innermost court of our human nature, our individual Holy of Holies, we dwell alone in strong, sweet solitude.

The test of your quality, the proof of your personality, is in the degree of your ability to live in public as honestly and finely as you can live when alone.

Such a man or woman is not an apology, but a life!

Seek, then, to score an equally noble success in society and in solitude!

Success in Public Speaking

The following suggestions, which Mr. Gladstone made in answer to a request for "any hints that might be useful to a public speaker," are well worth considering by all "platform" aspirants. It was attention to these rules which in no small degree accounted for Gladstone's own power in "swaying audiences." 1. Study plainness of language, always preferring the simpler word. 2. Shortness of sentences. 3. Distinctness of articulation. 4. Test and question your own arguments beforehand, not waiting for critic or opponent. 5. Seek a thorough digestion of and familiarity with your subject, and rely mainly on these to prompt the proper words. 6. Remember that if you are to sway an audience you must, besides thinking out your matter, watch it all along.

HARDSHIPS IN MOUNT EVEREST ATTEMPT

By Col. Howard Drury,

Leader of the Mount Everest expedition, special cable dispatch copyrighted and supplied by the Mount Everest committee.

TINGRI DZONG, June 23, via Simla, July 12.—All maps of these parts now are most misleading, and finding our way by a problematical map often affords quite a lot of amusement and speculation as to where we are going to arrive the following morning. Our host accompanied us some four miles along the valley down to Rongong, one of his villages, and there left us.

We followed the south bank of the Yaru some ten miles until we came to a wide sandy valley running north and south. Here the Yaru joined the Arum and turned to flow south, cutting its way through the Himalayas. We forded the Yaru where it was ninety yards wide and about three and half feet deep.

On the arrival of our transport we determined to cross the sandy valley before dark. This our guide and drivers were most anxious to do as soon as possible, as it is a most dangerous valley, they said and full of quicksands.

Vicious Sandstorms.

At times there was a violent sandstorm blowing. This, they said, would make crossing easier, as the quicksands would be covered with fresh sand and it would be possible to walk over them, so off we started.

Everyone was dressed as though for a gas attack, with goggles over the eyes and mouth and nose covered with handkerchiefs and mufflers to repel the sand. We first wound our way through the big sand dunes from whence the sand was blowing in clouds. Under a large sand dune we found some of our coolies halted. They were quite lost and unable to find their way across in the sandstorm.

After leaving the sand dunes we had some wide stretches of wet sand to cross, over which dry sand from the dunes was blowing in long smoke-like wisps so that the whole ground appeared in movement. At places where the wet sand shook and quivered we hurried on as fast as possible and eventually managed to get across in safety with all our transport.

Camped on Dunes.

It was now too late to go any further so we camped among some of the sand dunes in the teeth of the gale, close to the quicksands, with sand being whirled on to us and into the tents until everything and everyone was full of sand.

Just before dark a most beautiful and lofty peak appeared in the Southwest. The drivers called it Chomouri, the Goddess of Turquoise Peak. We had many discussions as to what mountain it was. In the morning we took its bearing carefully and decided this must be Mount Everest we had come so far to find, and which now was only about fifty miles away and stood up quite by itself. It is separated from all other peaks, towering into the clear blue sky to an immense height and far surpassing all its neighbors in loftiness.

As the Mount Everest Expedition has reached a point where existing maps have proved entirely inaccurate, according to Colonel Howard Bury's narrative available today, the movements of the explorers from now on are likely to be rather obscure. Henceforth it will be possible to ascertain the triumph, failures and trouble of the expedition through Colonel Bury's despatches, but impossible to put one's figer on the map to tell exactly where it is.

This may seem strange when taking into consideration the fact that Mount Everest itself is only seventy miles from the dense population of India and only 100 miles from Darjeeling which is the seat of the Bengal government during the heated season and from which the unconquered peak is visible.

Country Unexplored.

The country surrounding Mt. Everest is so challenging that no one has taken the trouble so far to adequately explore or map it. It is evident from Colonel Bury's despatches that the expedition found that when they had got to within forty miles of its goal at a point near Saar that the northwestern approach appeared impregnable and hence they pushed on slightly north of east in an endeavor to find a vulnerable spot.

That route has taken them to Tingri Dzong which acording to the maps is about forty miles from Mount Everest and about fifty miles from Saar.

The country between the point from which Colonel Bury last reported and Mount Everest itself is presumed to be very rough and doubtless the most difficult part of the journey lies ahead. It is assumed by students of the situation that the expedition will select some likely mountain pass, follow it as long as possible and then attempt to traverse the rocks and snow as best they can, which is slow, tedious, dangerous work.
